FROM

THE AUDITORS OF ACCOUNTS OF THE CALCUTTA PORT TRUST,

TO

THE VICE-CHAIRMAN OF THE COMMISSIONERS FOR MAKING IMPROVEMENTS IN THE PORT OF CALCUTTA.

Dated Calcutta, the 7th June 1884.

SIR,

WE have the honour to inform you that the cash and store accounts maintained in your office for the half-year ending 31st March 1884 have been examined and audited under our supervision and by our direction, and that subject to such objections in matters of detail as have been taken in writing on our behalf, we are able to certify that the accounts have been found correct.

2. We append a statement marked as Appendix A showing the transactions of the Revenue and Capital accounts during the half-year in question, and we certify that the statements of your financial position contained in appendix B represents a true and accurate description of the assets and liabilities of the Port Trust on the 31st March 1884, according as they have been found to be recorded upon your books.

3. We certify that the balances shown by the books to be at credit of the several Parts on the 31st March 1884 were as subjoined :—

	Cash said to be in the hands of cashier.	Amount said to be at the Bank.
	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.
Part I	35,744 10 0	820 13 7
„ II	1,220 14 1	6,410 12 8
„ III	3,319 14 4	3,344 5 10
„ IV	4,139 13 6	1,027 13 8
„ V	101 4 9	7,991 15 1
„ VI	321 2 9	3,667 12 11
„ VII	1,936 14 10	6,408 9 8
Debuture loan interest, 1881	.....	1,125 0 0
Ditto ditto, 1883	.....	47,250 0 0
Total ...	46,784 10 3	78,047 3 5

and that the balances actually on the same date in the Bank of Bengal, according to the nine Bank pass-books shown to us aggregated Rs. 1,56,356-11-4

The difference between this total and the balances claimed from the Bank was due to the fact that a large number of cheques issued during the month of March were not cashed by the Bank until after the close of that month, and that a large number of cash adjustments, orders for which had been issued before the close of the month of March, were not brought to account in the Bank until after the close of that month.

A table explaining these differences is subjoined :—

	Bank balance.	Unpaid cheques.	Short credits.
	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.
Part I	25,622 11 4	24,901 13 9	100 0 0
„ II	17,190 12 8	10,780 0 0	.....
„ III	10,092 7 9	6,748 1 11	.....
„ IV	35,213 2 6	42,854 4 10	8,669 0 0
„ V	7,774 0 7	50,539 0 5	50,756 14 4
„ VI	3,721 15 3	9,862 10 4	9,808 8 0
„ VII	8,366 9 3	11,957 15 7	10,000 0 0
Debenture loan interest, 1881 ...	1,125 0 0	.....	.....
Ditto ditto, 1883 ...	47,250 0 0	.....	.....
Total ...	1,56,356 11 4	1,57,643 14 10	79,334 6 4

It will be seen that a sum of Rs. 46,784-10-3 was in the hands of the cashier on the last day of March 1884, of which, however, only Rs. 4,932-0-7 represented actual cash, the remainder, viz. Rs. 41,852-9-8, represented cheques.

4. We furthermore certify that the Government securities retained in the statement of assets as in the possession of the Trust were actually in existence. The ledger balances of these securities have been verified by one of us with the securities held in the office and with the acknowledgments granted by the Bank of Bengal for such securities as are retained there for safe custody. The nominal value of these securities aggregated Rs. 7,82,000, of which securities to the value of Rs. 600 are retained in the office and have been seen by Mr. Larpent, and securities to the value of Rs. 7,81,400 are with the Bank of Bengal, the receipts for which were produced before us.

The details of these securities are as follows :—

	Rs.
Jetty insurance fund	51,800
Jetty reserve „	1,00,000
Port „ „	3,50,000
„ depreciation „	1,98,200
Chotta Lal's bathing ghât	15,600
Security deposits of contractors and employés	67,000
Total ...	7,82,000

5. The receipts and disbursements for the whole year are exhibited in an abstract statement marked as Appendix C. We do not consider it requisite to record any remarks in respect to the comparison made by us between the sanctioned estimates and the actual expenditure during the year, inasmuch as this comparison has already been recorded in a very complete manner by the Vice-Chairman in a note dated 5th May 1884; and as the sanction of the Government has been asked for such excesses as have resulted on the expenditure side in accordance with the requirements of sections 35 and 51 of Bengal Act V of 1870, no further notice upon our part seems requisite.

We have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servants,

R. LOGAN,

Offg. Accountant-General.

FREDERIC LARPENT,

Examiner of Local Accounts.

5. The audit of the accounts for the whole year, ending 31st March 1884, having thus been completed, we have summarised the transactions for the year in a special statement, annexed, which has been numbered as Appendix A. In this statement the operations of the year are contrasted with the estimates sanctioned by the Government. It is unnecessary to notice in any detail the comparison upon the receipt side of this statement; and it is only necessary to say that under two heads of expenditure only has any excess over the estimates occurred. Under the other heads material savings have accrued under the item Repayment of loan, an excess of Rs. 85,000 has occurred an excess rendered justifiable, if not necessary, by reason of the increased receipts from the tolls upon railway traffic, and one petty item has been incurred without any provision in the estimates, viz., the item of Rs. 1,322-3-5 expended upon illuminating the bridge on the occasion of the visit of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught to Calcutta.

We have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servants,

R. LOGAN,
Offg. Accountant-General.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF EMIGRATION ON INLAND EMIGRATION FOR THE YEAR 1883.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—INLAND EMIGRATION.

Darjeeling, the 29th June 1884.

READ—

The Report on Inland Emigration for the year 1883.

The Report on Inland Emigration for the year 1883 has been punctually submitted by Dr. Grant, who was in charge of the office of Superintendent of Emigration throughout the year. As the system in force under the old Act continued to some extent during the year 1882, this is the first report showing the full effect of the changes introduced by the Inland Emigration Act I of 1882.

2. The rules and forms under the new Act, provisionally sanctioned by the Government notification of 24th February 1882, were reconsidered during 1883, and new rules and forms, with which those adopted in Assam agree, came into force on the 1st January 1884. Additional rules providing for house accommodation, food, water-supply, and sanitary arrangements at places of labour in Chittagong and the Chittagong Hill Tracts have since been considered and published for general information. In April 1883 the mortality from cholera among emigrants arriving at Mugra station on the East Indian Railway for Kanchrapara on the Eastern Bengal Railway, attracted the attention of Government.

Dr. Grant submitted elaborate proposals for supplying emigrants en route to Dhubri with cooked food, giving them rest at regular intervals and providing treatment for the sick. His suggestions, however, were not acceptable to the agencies engaged in emigration, and, besides being too expensive, were not acceptable to the Government. Arrangements are now being made for the medical examination and treatment at Mugra on the East Indian Railway of garden-sardars' coolies detained there by sickness. The daily steam-service between Dhubri and Assam, mentioned in the Resolution on last year's report, was started on the 12th August 1883, but the boats did not begin to run regularly till the 1st October. The steamers intended for this line were fitted out under the supervision of the Superintendent of Emigration before leaving Calcutta for Dhubri.

3. It was at first proposed to place emigration from the North-Western Provinces and Oudh under the control of the Superintendent of Emigration in Calcutta, and Dr. Grant was formally appointed Superintendent of Emigration for those Provinces. There were, however, practical difficulties in the working of certain sections of the Act by an officer resident in Calcutta, and the appointment has therefore been cancelled, the North-Western Provinces Government being left to appoint its own Superintendent. Separate arrangements are being made for the administration, by the Governments of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and Assam, of those portions of the Labour Transport Fund which are raised within their respective jurisdictions. A question is still pending as to the division of the balance now at credit of the fund between Bengal and Assam.

4. Two distinct agencies for recruiting emigrants and forwarding them to their destination under the provisions of the law were in operation during 1883—(a) recruiters supervised by contractors, and (b) garden-sardars working for the most part under the local agents as recognized by the Act of 1882. In addition to these two agencies working within the Emigration Act, there was also a third system operating outside it, under which unlicensed recruiters of free emigrants collect labourers in the recruiting districts and take them to Assam without registration or other assistance from Government. In some cases such recruiters are supervised in the recruiting districts by European Agents in the employ of various Tea Companies who occupy the same position as local agents under the Act, except that they hold no license from Government.

5. The results of the recruiting carried on by the first two agencies may be stated as follows:—

(a)—473 recruiters, working under eight contractors, registered in the recruiting districts 9,876 emigrants and dependents; of whom 7,540 were intended for transmission viâ Calcutta to Assam, Cachar, and Sylhet, and 2,336 were sent to Cachar and Sylhet only viâ Goalundo.

(b)—2,897 garden-sardars, of whom 2,082 were under the control of 46 local agents, registered 5,291 emigrants for transport to the tea districts by routes other than Dhubri, and 6,791 for transport viâ Dhubri—in all 12,082.

Thus it will be seen that the two agencies authorized under the law collected in all 21,958 emigrants for transmission to the tea districts. A comparison of the work done by each shows that on an average every recuiter collected and registered 20·87 emigrants, while the average for garden-sardars is only 4·16. The ordinary explanation is—that the recruiter is a professional whose only object is to collect as many coolies as possible, without reference to their fitness for work in Assam, or any considerations beyond their willingness to emigrate. The garden-sardar, on the other hand, has mostly worked on a tea-garden himself, and belongs to the same class as the persons whom he recruits. He is inferior in persuasive power and business capacity to the recruiter, nor does he as a rule command the assistance of the unlicensed village touts known as arkátis, from whom the recruiter draws a large proportion of his supply. Sometimes, indeed, he collects no coolies at all, or disposes of those he has collected to the nearest recruiter. At the same time the comparatively small results of an individual garden-sardar's operations are supposed on the whole to be compensated by the superior quality of the labourers he recruits, who in many instances are relatives or fellow-villagers of his own.

6. Besides the 21,958 emigrants recruited and registered by the two licensed agencies referred to above, 10,096 free emigrants were despatched from Dhubri to Assam Proper. Of these, 9,389 executed local contracts at Dhubri before proceeding to the district in which their employment lies, while only 707 went on to the tea gardens with the intention of making terms for themselves. No information is available regarding the numbers of free emigrants who went to Cachar and Sylhet, or who made their way to Assam Proper by any route other than Dhubri. It is believed, however, that the number of free emigrants despatched to the tea districts during the year largely exceeds the number recorded in this report as having passed through Dhubri.

7. In comparing the results of sardars' and recruiters' operations, Dr Grant gives the following table showing the statistics of each class of coolies for the last three years, exclusive of the Dhubri route:—

Year.	Contractors' coolies.	Sardars' coolies.	Total.	Percentage of sardars' to contractors' coolies.
1881	6,415	2,379	8,794	37·0
1882	7,995	2,907	10,902	36 3
1883	9,876	5,291	15,167	54·59

He draws attention to the increased percentage of sardari coolies and the rise in the number of licensed garden-sardars from 1,721 in 1880 to 2,897 in 1883, and concludes by remarking that "the larger number of sardars who received recruiting certificates during the year must have given a decided impulse to sardars' recruitment and probably also to free emigration." An increase in the number of garden-sardars licensed under the Act cannot have stimulated free emigration unless such sardars were employed to recruit free emigrants. This, however, they cannot legally do so long as they retain their licenses. It was the intention of the Act and the rules framed under it that recruitment by licensed agencies should be kept wholly separate from recruitment by unlicensed agencies. If licensed garden-sardars have, under the cover of their licenses, removed emigrants from their districts without registration, they committed a distinct breach of the law. The Lieutenant-Governor is under the impression that such a practice does prevail to some extent, and this impression is strengthened by what he has read in the Report of the Assam Administration on the working of the Act during 1883. The question thus arises—should the practice be brought into harmony with the law, or should the law be altered to suit the practice? If the practice grows still further, and is not accompanied by any serious abuses, it is questionable whether any alteration in the law would be satisfactory, short of its repeal. When an Inland Emigration Act was first placed on the Statue book, the intention was to protect the emigrant; but with the growing prevalence of "free" emigration, the retention of such an Act would serve as a protection, not so much to the emigrant as to the planter. The Lieutenant-Governor does not at the present moment assert that the planter stands in need of no protection; but he is disposed to the view that, with the rapid development of easy means of communication between Assam and Bengal, the justification for any special emigration law is disappearing. And Mr. Rivers Thompson is the more inclined to this view, when he considers that the present law seems to admit of being largely worked mainly in the interests of the parties who stand least in want of special protection. The time, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, cannot be far distant when labour in Assam must be regulated by the ordinary contract law.

A point in connection with free emigration, upon which further information is desired, is the nature of the authority given by employers to the subordinate agents who collect free emigrants. No doubt a written authority of some kind must be given to such persons, but it is understood that in some cases this consists of a printed form not readily distinguishable from the license granted to garden-sardars under the Act. In such a case, as in the somewhat similar case of a licensed garden-sardar employed to collect free emigrants, the semblance of legal authority is used to induce people to emigrate without the safeguard afforded by registration. It may not be desirable to treat all such cases with severity, for they are evidences of the radical change which is being worked out in the system of emigration, but none the less for security against abuses they should be watched and reported to the Government.

8. The following statement shows the actual results of emigration during 1883 as compared with the recorded statistics of the two previous years :—

	1881.	1882.	1883.
Recruiters' coolies registered...	6,415	7,995	9,876
Sardars' ditto	2,379	2,907	12,082
Free emigrants despatched from Dhubri	.....	.....	10,096
Total ...	8,794	10,902	32,054

The enormous apparent increase in the number of emigrants is due in great measure to the defective statistics furnished in former years. Thus in 1881 and 1882, nothing was known about free emigrants, and there was no record of the sardars' coolies using the Dhubri route. Statistics obtained from the Deputy Commissioner of Goalpara now enable Dr. Grant to report that 6,769 sardars' coolies and 10,096 free emigrants—in all 16,865 persons—went to Assam viâ Dhubri. Deducting these from the total of 32,054 shown above, there still remains 15,189 representing the operations of 1883, calculated on the data available for 1881 and 1882. That is to say, excluding free emigrants and sardars' coolies travelling by Dhubri, the number of emigrants from Bengal to the tea districts has risen during the past year from 10,902 to 15,167, or 39·12 per cent. If free emigrants and Dhubri coolies be included, the figures, though valueless for the purpose of comparison, bear out the conjecture made in paragraph 3 of the Resolution on last year's report, that the statistics furnished hitherto considerably understate the number of emigrants from Bengal. Enquiries made at Raneegunge in January 1883, with the object of ascertaining the probable trade on the proposed railway from Bengal to Nagpore, elicited the fact that during 1882 no less than 12,000 emigrants left Raneegunge for Assam under a special form of railway ticket in covered trucks, a mode of travelling which is said to be very popular with them. These figures, which were taken from the counterfoils of the truck tickets, did not, however, represent the total emigration from Raneegunge, for some of the chief coolie agents there preferred to despatch their emigrants by ordinary third-class tickets, of which no special record was kept. During the same year the official statistics show only 3,923 emigrants registered and despatched from the four districts of Chota Nagpore and from Burdwan, the chief sources of supply for emigration from Raneegunge. Already, then, in 1882, the practice of free emigration, formally sanctioned by the Emigration Act of that year, had been developed to a much greater extent than was generally supposed to be the case.

9. In connection with free emigration, the district officers of Chota Nagpore report a certain increase in the number of petitions from persons complaining that their relatives have been "enticed away" by recruiters and garden-sardars. It is also stated that a much smaller proportion of the emigrants in question can be traced or accounted for than was the case under the old Act. The Commissioner of Chota Nagpore suggested that a remedy might be found by making village chowkidars responsible for such disappearances, and the district officer of Manbhoom proposed that the missing persons should be advertised for in the Assam Gazette. In the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion neither of these suggestions would have any practical effect. Abuses existed under the contractor system, and to some extent abuses may exist under the present law, which demand correction ; but from cases which have come under the Lieutenant-Governor's notice, it frequently is the case, not that the emigrant himself is unwilling to proceed to the labour districts, but that his friends and relatives are unwilling that he should go. Kidnapping and abduction are offences punishable under the Penal Code, and whenever cases of this kind are discovered, they should be strictly prosecuted and severely punished. For the rest the remedy must be sought in improved communications between Assam and Bengal ; and as facilities of travel increase, and the knowledge of the circumstances and conditions of the new life on the tea plantations is extended, a voluntary system will be developed, which will not need the intervention of the Government, and which will eventually supersede the necessity of all special emigration laws. It is the Lieutenant-Governor's hope that the time for this may shortly come. Meanwhile good may be done by a free interchange of communications between Assam and Bengal district officers, and thorough inspections in the labour districts.

10. Seven recruiters' licenses were cancelled during the year for misconduct, being 1·47 per cent. of the total number of such licenses granted. The percentage of licenses cancelled in 1882 was 2·61. The number of licenses granted to local agents was less by two than in 1882, but each of them had on an average 45·26 sardars under him as against 22·17 in that year. This shows that employers of labour approve of the system, while the absence of complaints from district officers seems to indicate that it has worked well. Most of the agents are men of education and intelligence, who are in a position to understand their responsibilities under the Act, and who are interested in retaining appointments which possess a substantial value. Only one garden-sardar's license was cancelled for misconduct. This, however, can hardly be taken as a test of the behaviour of garden-sardars generally. Their operations come less directly under the notice of the district officers than those of recruiters, while the people generally are less ready to complain against men of their own village and caste than against the up-country men usually selected as recruiters.

11. In paragraph 4 of the Resolution on the Report for 1882, the Superintendent of Emigration was requested to furnish details of the localities which supply the emigrants of the year. Dr. Grant, however, appears to have found some difficulty in ascertaining the district of residence as contradistinguished from that of registration, and his difficulty is explained by the fact that at certain seasons people leave their homes for work in other districts, and, not finding it to their satisfaction, emigrate. It is well, however, that the attempt to ascertain the districts which supply emigrants to the labour districts should be persevered in as far as practicable.

12. Of the 7,540 emigrants registered for transmission to Assam through the Calcutta depôts, only 6,993 reached Calcutta. This considerable reduction in numbers is thus accounted for —

At Mofussil Depôts.

Detained	...	220
Discharged	...	56
Deserted	...	175
Died	...	1
Total	...	452 or 5·97 per cent.

On journey to Calcutta.

Detained	..	4
Deserted	..	116
Died	..	2
Total	..	122 or 1·61 per cent.

Taking both set of depôts together, the total reduction comes to 574, or 7·61 per cent. on the number registered. The corresponding figures for 1882 are 150, or 2·34 per cent. on the number registered. It is true that detention in the mofussil depôts accounts for a large proportion of the increase; but, even after allowing for this, the fact remains that the percentage of desertion has risen both in mofussil and in Calcutta depôts. Including 251 emigrants left over from last year, and two born in depôt, the total number of emigrants accommodated at the depôts during the year was 7,246. Of these, 58 were rejected, 372 were discharged, 436 deserted, 3 died of cholera and 6 from other causes, making a total of 875 casualties. Of the remainder, numbering 6,371, 6,028 were despatched to Goalundo, leaving 343 in depôt at the close of the year. The death-rate was only 1·2 per thousand of the total number admitted into depôt. The percentages of desertions and discharges are slightly less than in 1882. In accordance with the instructions given in paragraph 5 of the Resolution on last year's Report, the Superintendent has made personal enquiries into this question. He assumes that the same motives account for desertions as discharges, and this may very likely be the case. Change of mind, change of circumstances, considerations of caste or neighbourhood, ignorance of the distance to be travelled, fraud by the recruiter, false pretences on the part of the emigrant himself—all these causes go to account for the desertions and discharges which reduce the number of emigrants registered in any given year. Nothing more definite than this can be said.

13. Out of 2,336 emigrants registered for transmission from the recruiting districts to Cachar and Sylhet by way of Goalundo, only 1,994 arrived, 17 were left behind, 19 died, and 306 or 13·09 deserted. No explanation is offered of this very large proportion of desertions. The Superintendent should ascertain and report whether the contractor, Baboo A. T. Mookerjee, can assign any reason for a circumstance which primâ facie throws discredit upon his recruiting operations. The number of emigrants despatched from Calcutta and accommodated in the Goalundo depôts was 8,042. Deducting 51 desertions, 14 deaths, and 13 released from their engagements, there remained 7,964 emigrants to be despatched to the labour districts. Of these, 7,897 were actually shipped, leaving 67 in depôt at the close of the year. Besides these, 548 sardars' emigrants embarked for Assam in steamers without having passed through the contractors' depôts.

14. Including the 548 sardars' coolies noticed above, 8,445 emigrants and dependents embarked at Goalundo during the year. Of these, 3,908 were conveyed by the steamers to Assam Proper and 4,537 to Cachar and Sylhet by country-boats. The average length of the steamer passages was 17 days, and the average number of passengers 78. Of 50 trips made, 46 were free from cholera. There were 16 deaths—13 from cholera and 3 from other causes. The accommodation, fittings ventilation, and water-supply of the vessels have been favourably reported on throughout the year.

15. Among the 4,537 emigrants embarked for Cachar and Sylhet in 303 country-boats, carrying an average of 14·97 emigrants apiece, 43 deaths occurred—36 from cholera and 7 from other causes. The death-rate was less than in 1882, and the decrease is attributed by Dr. Richards, the Superintendent of Emigration at Goalundo, to the almost total absence of cholera along the route to Cachar and Sylhet.

16. The statistics of emigration viâ Dhubri direct, given by Dr. Grant in section IV of the Report, were supplied by the Deputy Commissioner of Goalpara and correspond with those entered in the Annual Report on Immigration viâ Dhubri for the year 1883, a copy of which has been forwarded to this Government by the Assam Administration. It appears that 17,106 labourers and their dependents left the recruiting districts for Dhubri, and that 16,983, comprising 6,791 sardars' coolies registered under the Act and 10,192 free emigrants, reached their destination. After allowing for deductions and additions at Dhubri and on the journey to the tea districts, 16,723 actually arrived at the gardens out of a total of 16,865 despatched from Dhubri.

17. On summing up the results of the year's operations, it will be found that 9,876 recruiters' coolies and their dependents were registered during the year. Adding 300 for births and for emigrants remaining on from the previous year, the number available for Assam rises to 10,176. After deducting 1,991, or 19·56 per cent., for casualties, there remain 7,775 who actually reached the tea districts, of whom 3,345 went to Assam, 2,692 to Sylhet, and 1,738 to Cachar. For sardars' coolies equally precise figures are not available. It can only be said that 5,291 emigrants of this class were registered for transmission by routes other than Dhubri, and that 6,791 actually arrived at Dhubri—in all 12,082. Besides these, 10,192 free emigrants reached Dhubri through agencies working outside the emigration law. After despatch from Dhubri, no separate record of sardari and free emigrants appears to be available. Taking both together, 16,983 reached Dhubri, 16,865 were despatched from Dhubri, and 16,723 arrived at their destination in the tea districts. On the whole, it is clear that the Act of 1882 has given a remarkable impulse to emigration, and in particular to the sardari and free systems, in which the amount of assistance rendered by Government to the emigrant, or the amount of control exercised by Government over the recruiter, is reduced to a minimum. If the present rate of progress is maintained for a few years, it will, in Mr. Rivers Thompson's opinion, be a subject for consideration whether the time will not have come for Government to withdraw from all legislative interference with the labour supply of Assam.

CALCUTTA,
The 30th June 1884.

JOHN ELIOT,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL DURING THE WEEK ENDING THE 27TH JUNE 1884.

THE disappearance of the cyclonic disturbance at the head of the Bay, described in last week's report, was followed by the extension of south-west monsoon winds over the whole Province. They brought up much aqueous vapour, and gave general and abundant rain to all parts of the Province except the most southern portions of Orissa and Chutia Nagpur. This continued until the 22nd or 23rd, when the winds became rapidly feebler. The diminution in the amount of rainfall was at first shown in South Bengal and Orissa. The shifting of the winds in that part of the Province on the 24th or 25th, to directions between north-east and north-west, indicated that it was due to the formation of another small cyclonic circulation at the head of the Bay. This, although apparently very small, has been remarkably persistent. It has continued to occupy almost the same position for several days. At the same time unusually strong winds are blowing on the Ceylon and Coromandel coast, in the latter case from the west, almost certainly indicating unsettled squally weather, with heavy rain, over the centre and perhaps the north of the Bay. When the disturbance at the head of the Bay, due to these conditions, passes away, it will probably be followed by another inrush of moisture and general rain over the Province.

Pressure.—The variations of pressure during the week were very irregular, and mainly dependent on, and connected with, rainfall. Pressure was low at the end of last week, but increased at the commencement of the week under review. In South Bengal and Orissa it began to diminish after the 23rd. The fall continued until the end of the week, and was partly due to the formation of a slight barometric depression in the north-west angle of the Bay. This, although very small, has influenced the weather in Bengal considerably, modifying the wind directions and diminishing the amount of the rainfall. The barometer was unusually low in Behar on the 22nd and 23rd, after which it rose. The fluctuations were smaller in amount in East and North Bengal. The barometer was, however, falling generally at the end of the week. The mean pressure of the week was either normal or slightly below the average in Chutia Nagpur and Behar, and locally at Calcutta. It was ·03″ above it in Orissa and the greater part of South-West Bengal, and ·05″ above it in East Bengal.

Temperature—Was considerably below the average during the greater part of the week in consequence of the general and heavy rainfall. It was steadily below it during the first four days of the week; it increased rather rapidly on the 25th, and was above the normal in Orissa, Chutia Nagpur and South Bengal on the 26th, and over the whole Province, except South Behar, on the 27th. The mean temperature of the week was hence below the average for the whole Province. The deficiency averaged 3° for South Behar, 2½° for Chutia Nagpur and East Bengal, 2° for South-West Bengal, and 1½° for Orissa. Cuttack was the only station at which a maximum temperature exceeding 100° occurred. The highest at that station during the week was 100·4°.

Winds.—During the first four days of the week moderately strong winds, approximately normal in direction, prevailed over the whole Province. The easterly winds in Behar were unusually strong on the 21st and 22nd. Winds then began to fall off in strength. This was followed in Behar and Chutia Nagpur by the establishment of westerly winds on the 25th. They were probably the continuation of the monsoon winds of the Bombay coast. They were, however, replaced on the 26th by light and unsteady easterly winds. The winds in South Bengal and Orissa shifted round to directions between north-east and north-west on the 25th, indicating the formation of a slight depression near the head of the Bay.

Rainfall—Abundant rain has fallen during the past week in every part of the Province. Rain was received in every district during the 21st, 22nd, and 23rd. It was heaviest on the 21st and 22nd in the Balasore and South Midnapore districts. Contai received 7·84 inches on the 21st, and Saugor Island 5·42 inches on the 23rd. During the next two days, the 24th and 25th, general rain continued to fall in East and North Bengal and in Behar. Local showers occurred in South-West Bengal and Orissa. The rainfall was specially heavy during this period in the Dacca, Commillah, Mymensingh, Bogra, Rungpore and Cooch Behar districts. Amongst the heaviest rainfalls in 24 hours at this time were—

Bogra ...	...	...	...	6·5	inches on the	24th.

During the remaining two days little rain was received in either North or East Bengal, or the eastern districts of South-West Bengal; moderate and fairly general rain on the other hand occurred in North Orissa, the western districts of South-West Bengal, Chutia Nagpur and Behar.

The total rainfall of the week was very considerably in excess in the Chittagong, Balasore, South Midnapore, Jessore, Dacca, Commillah, Mymensingh, Bogra, and to a less extent in the Rajshahye, Barrisal, Dinagepore, Mozufferpore, Durbhunga, Chumparun and Patna districts.

The only districts in which it was noticeably below the average were the Darjeeling Hill District, which has received rainfall steadily below thenormal during the present year up to date, the Poorce district, Rungpore, Julpigoree, Cooch Behar, Shahabad, and the Lohardugga, Manbhoom, and Singhbhoom districts of Chutia Nagpur.

Over the remaining districts of the Province the rainfall of the week was approximately normal in amount.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall date of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 27th June 1884 :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

* MEMORANDA.

THE mortuary returns of the districts in Bengal, excluding those of thana Beguserai, in Monghyr, from which they have not as yet been received, for the month of April 1884, disclose the undermentioned results :—

(1) That 132,123 deaths were recorded among a population of 65,784,090, representing a death-rate of 24·00 per 1,000 per annum, against 19·56 per 1,000 during the preceding month, and 17·76 per 1,000 during the corresponding month of 1883, indicating a sensible advance in the registration of the events.

(2) That the following districts returned the highest proportions of deaths :—

Districts.	Ratio per mille.	Districts.	Ratio per mille.
Nuddea	78·12	Burdwan	31·20
Murshidabad	58·92	Faridpore	29·28

Backergunge	32·64	Sarun	25·68
Birbhum	31·56	Gya	25·20
Dacca	31·44	Khulna	25·08

(3) That the mortality from the different death-causes specified below, as contrasted with the results of the corresponding month of the past year, stands as follows :—

	Ratio per mille during—
	April 1884.	April 1883.
Cholera	5·52	1·92

Fever	13·80	12·36
Bowel-complaints	·84	·72
Injury	·24	·24
Other causes	2·64	2·04

indicating that, there was a marked increase of mortality from every death-cause excepting injury which exhibits no variation, and that cholera prevailed with considerably aggravated severity.

(4) That while bowel-complaints and injury were nowhere noticeably fatal, cholera, small-pox, fever and "other causes" caused the highest mortality in the districts named below :—

Cholera.

The figures denote that, cholera prevailed with marked severity in a large number of districts, most so in Nuddea, Murshidabad and Rajshahye, and that fever was also very fatal in these three districts as well as in Pubna.

(5) That the mortality of the month distributed under the heads of Sex, Class and Age, stands as follows :—

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community taken in February 1881 was not reliable, owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans above alluded cannot be employed as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under the authorized form of age classification.

GENERAL REMARKS AND EXPLANATIONS.

For the first time since last October an increase in the traffic, in comparison with May 1883, has to be recorded. The quantity lifted during the month is 19,042·83 tons as against 16 557 27 tons, the difference being 2,485·56 tons, or an increase of 15·01 per cent. The principal staples contributing to this happy result are Food-grain, Miscellaneous, Piece-goods, Railway material, Salt, and Tobacco; while decreases have to be recorded in Ginger, Gunny-bags, Jute, and Tea.

Increases.

Ale ... ... Tons 9·88

This is the time when supplies are sent forward for the troops.

Food-grain .. .. Tons 1.438 67

The total quantity lifted during the month is 5,361 04 tons as against 3,922 37 tons last May. The increase is due to better prices and demand.

Miscellaneous ... ... Tons 266·76

Before the rains set in, endeavours are always made to push forward machinery, stores, &c., for tea gardens.

Piece-goods ... ... Tons 141·29

It is satisfactory to note the steady increase under this head. As soon as the rains set in a falling off may have to be recorded.

Railway material ... ... Tons 960·42

Large quantities of sleepers are coming forward for the Engineering Department.

Salt ... ... Tons 354·67

In Calcutta stocks are large and prices have a downward tendency, thus affording a good opportunity to purchasers for the mofussil.

Tobacco ... ... Tons 173 47

Prices have advanced slightly in Calcutta, though not sufficiently to induce a good traffic. If the market continues firm, the heavy falling off recorded in April will soon be covered.

Decreases.

Ginger ... ... Tons 38·57

In the face of the heavy traffic last month a decrease was inevitable.

Gunny-bags ... ... Tons 391·38

The market is extremely dull, and no improvement can be expected till the jute season has set in.

Jute ... ... Tons 363 38

The market continues very quiet and prices are quoted one to two annas lower than last month. Reports of the new crop are favourable.

Sugar ... ... Tons 2·31

This traffic remains stationary as usual.

Tea ... ... Tons 63·96

The season is not an early one as was at first anticipated, and this will explain this slight decrease, which will without doubt be made up later on.

I.—The master of every vessel on board of which there is, either among the passengers or crew, any case of cholera, small-pox, or other epidemic disease common in India, shall report such case or cases to the pilot or other boarding officer at the earliest opportunity; or in the absence of a pilot or other boarding officer, shall hoist a signal, which shall be, during the day, flag R of the Commercial Code at the main, and during the night two lighted lanterns, one over the other, at the fore.

II.—The Port Officer, having received information from the pilot or other boarding officer, or by signal, that any case of such disease is on board, shall communicate the information to the Health Officer of the Port.

III.—The Health Officer, as early as possible after receipt of this information, shall inspect the vessel, and more especially its sanitary condition; shall inquire into the circumstances attending the case or cases of the said disease; and shall arrange for the conveyance of all persons suffering from such disease to a hospital, unless the sick person or his friends can make adequate provision elsewhere.

V.—Where the disease or diseases in question are limited to one or two cases, the vessel shall not be prohibited from taking up the usual place of anchorage in the harbour, nor shall the passengers be detained on board pending the inspection of the Health Officer; but the master of the vessel shall be held responsible that no passenger suspected of having such disease is allowed to depart before this inspection.

VI.—Where cases have been more numerous than one or two, or when, from their occurring on pilgrim or emigrant ships, or for other special reasons, further precautions may be deemed advisable, the vessel shall anchor in the place appointed for the purpose off the outer bar of the Chittagong river, and none of the passengers shall be allowed to leave until the Health Officer has made his inspection.

They will, however, be brought into operation under the special orders of Government only when there is any danger of the importation of plague or yellow-fever, or some fatal epidemic not ordinarily prevalent in India:—

I.—The commander of every vessel, including buggalows or other native craft, arriving from a port where plague, yellow-fever, or some fatal epidemic not ordinarily prevalent among Indian populations prevails, shall, before entering the harbour, indicate by signal the port from which such vessel has come.

II.—Such commander shall not, without having first obtained permission as hereinafter provided, allow any communication either with the pilot boat, except orally, or with the shore, or with any other vessel or boat in the harbour.

III.—Immediately on the signal of such arrival being made, the Health Officer of the port shall go alongside the vessel and ascertain by enquiry from the Commander whether any person on board is then suffering, or has during the voyage suffered, from plague, yellow-fever, or some fatal epidemic not ordinarily prevalent among Indian populations; and if such officer is satisfied by such enquiry that no such case has occurred, he shall by writing under his hand, to be delivered to the commander, permit free communication between such vessel and the shore, and with other vessels and boats in the harbour.

IV.—If the Health Officer shall have reason to believe that any such case has occurred, he shall direct the commander to take the vessel to the quarantine anchorage (at Jooldia) duly appointed and notified by Government, there to remain for the space of fifteen days from the day of arrival in the harbour, or from the date of the occurrence of the latest case of illness, and shall further direct the commander to prohibit during the said fifteen days all communication, except such as is hereinafter provided for, between such vessel and the shore, or other vessels or boats in the harbour. The Health Officer may further direct the removal of so many of the passengers and crew as may not be suffering from sickness, and whose services may not be required on board the ship, to such particular spots as may from time to time be fixed upon by the local Government as places of quarantine, there to remain for a space of fifteen days; or in the event of the occurrence of a case of sickness, for a space of fifteen days from the date of the occurrence of the last case.

V.—Any mails or cargo which may be brought by any vessel so arriving shall be landed under such precautions as may be deemed necessary by the Health Officer to prevent the spread of the disease.

VI.—It will be the duty of the Port Officer to facilitate the conveyance to the vessel in quarantine of all supplies of provisions, stores, and other articles required by those on board. These supplies should be placed on the boats of the vessel, to be subsequently removed by members of her crew.

RETENTION OF THE JUNIOR CLASSES OF THE RAJSHAHYE MADRASSA AS A BRANCH OF THE RAJSHAHYE COLLEGE.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—EDUCATION.

Darjeeling, the 1st July 1884.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The following papers regarding the abolition of the Rajshahye Madrissa and the retention of its junior classes as a branch of the Rajshahye College:—

The abolition of the Rajshahye Madrissa, and the transfer of its building to the Rajshahye College, gave rise to some disappointment among the Mahomedans of Rajshahye, which found expression in a memorial addressed to Government. In order to meet the earnest wish of the memorialists, arrangements were made for maintaining the junior classes of the Madrissa as a branch of the Rajshahye College, the cost being met from the balance of the allotment formerly made from the Mohsin Fund to the Rajshahye Madrissa, and transferred, on the abolition of that institution, to the college classes of the Calcutta

Madrissa Further consideration, however, has shown that the cost of the Rajshahye classes is greater than was at first estimated, while the Mohsin Fund, from which it was proposed to support them, has fallen into a state of deficit owing to the heavy charges thrown upon it from various sides.

2. The Director of Public Instruction states that the monthly establishment noted in the margin is the smallest with which the Madrissa classes can be properly carried on. Under existing arrangements, only Rs. 96-5 a month is available from the Mohsin Fund. Mr. Croft therefore proposes that the cost of the college classes of the Calcutta Madrissa, hitherto paid from the Mohsin Fund, should be charged to General revenues, and that from the amount thus set free a Mohsin grant of Rs. 2,400 a year should be made to the Rajshahye College for the support of the Madrissa classes. He expresses his belief that, if this arrangement be sanctioned, the Mahomedans of Rajshahye will accept as satisfactory the proposal to repay to the Mohsin Fund Rs. 20,000, being nearly two-thirds of the cost of the Rajshahye Madrissa building, which will now be partly devoted to the use of the Rajshahye College and partly used as a hostel by the Madrissa students.

Head Moulvi	50

3. In support of the proposal to meet the cost of the college classes of the Calcutta Madrissa from Provincial revenues, reference is made to the somewhat analogous case of the Sanskrit College, for which Government maintains a staff of professors teaching to a high standard in Sanskrit, and also teaching the First Arts course of the University. The comparison seems to be a fair one. There is no reason why the support accorded by Government to English education in the Calcutta Madrissa should stop short at the Entrance standard, leaving all education of a higher class to be provided for from Mahomedan endowments. And when it is shown that an extension of the Government contribution to the Calcutta Madrissa will enable an allotment to be made from the Mohsin Fund for the maintenance of the Madrissa classes of the Rajshahye College, a special reason is added for recognising the claim put forward on behalf of Mahomedan education, and making the concession desired.

4. The cost of the College Department of the Calcutta Madrissa is stated to be Rs. 5,842 a year. This will now be met from Provincial revenues, an extra grant of that amount being made to the Education Department with effect from the beginning of the current year. From the Mohsin Funds thus set free an allotment of Rs. 2,400 is sanctioned for the maintenance of the Madrissa classes of the Rajshahye College. Some difficulty is anticipated in sanctioning at once the re-payment of Rs. 20,000 to the Mohsin Fund on account of the Madrissa building, and this grant will probably have to be deferred to the next financial year. Until then it is believed that the Mohsin Fund will be in no pressing want of the amount.

5. The arrangements now concluded appear to the Lieutenant-Governor to be in every way equitable and satisfactory. It affords him satisfaction to be able to meet the claims of the Mahomedan community for larger support to higher education in the Calcutta Madrissa, without depriving Rajshahye of assistance. It is clear that Rajshahye could not fairly demand or fully support a local Madrissa, but it did need certain classes for Mahomedan students, which the arrangements now sanctioned will secure to it. Mr. Rivers Thompson hopes that the Mahomedans of Rajshahye will not fail to take full advantage of the opportunity now offered to them of prosecuting their studies in the special learning which they respect, and at the same time of acquiring a knowledge of the English language and literature which will open to them wider prospects of advancement than can be attained through a purely oriental course of study.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

A. P. MACDONNELL,

Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE HAZARIBAGH REFORMATORY SCHOOL FOR THE YEAR 1883.

RESOLUTION.

JAILS.

Darjeeling, the 2nd July 1884.

READ—

Letter No. 4242, dated the 26th May 1884, from the Inspector-General of Jails, forwarding the report of the Superintendent on the Administration of the Reformatory School at Hazaribagh for the year 1883.

In the year 1881 the attention of the Government was drawn to the fact that the Reformatory School at Alipore had been quite full during the preceding year, and that only a few boys could be received into it as vacancies occurred. The success of this institution had been great, and the question of providing another school as a reformatory for juvenile offenders had to be considered. It was proposed by the Inspector-General of Jails that the European jail buildings at Hazareebagh, which had become vacant, should be utilized for all juvenile criminals convicted in Chota Nagpore and Behar. The accommodation ready for use consisted of 118 cells, of which 60 cells were unoccupied at the close of the year. It was intended that the training to be given to the boys should be similar to that in the Alipore institution, and that the boys should be brought up as carpenters, blacksmiths, market-gardeners and agriculturists. The Superintendent of the District Jail was also to be Superintendent of the Reformatory, assisted by a Deputy Superintendent and a Committee of Visitors appointed from among the official and non-official community of Hazaribagh.

2. These proposals were approved by this Government and sanctioned by the Government of India; and, in September 1882, 25 boys were transferred to Hazaribagh from the Alipore Reformatory. The report under review is, therefore, the first which deals with its administration during a complete year, and it is satisfactory to find that it has been on the whole successful.

3. The number of boys in the school on the 1st January 1883 was 39; 20 were admitted during the year, and 1 released, and there were consequently 58 boys remaining at the end of 1883. Of these, 9 were Mussulmans and 49 Hindoos. The boy released was reported, after the close of the year, to be working as a tinman and earning an honest livelihood.

4. The discipline in the Reformatory is reported to have steadily improved, though the number of punishments was, during the year, 247, which appears excessive. There were 90 punishments of whipping and 80 of penal diet. The whippings are reported to have generally consisted only of a few cuts on the hand. The mark system is stated to have worked very well, the boys competing with each other in the endeavour to earn the largest number. The total earnings of the boys came to Rs. 108-10-6. The Superintendent describes the day's proceedings as follows:—"The boys rise at 4-30 A.M. in summer and 5-30 A.M. in winter, make up their beds, clean their cells and verandahs, and take the early morning meal. School from 6 to 8 A.M.; work from 8 to 10 A.M.; breakfast, bathing, and latrine parades 10 to 11 A.M.; resume work at 11 A.M.; play hour 2 to 3 P M; work 3 to 5 P.M.; at 5 P.M. work ceases, and the boys take their evening meal; night-school from 6 to 9 P.M." This curriculum certainly does not err in the direction of too much recreation, and it appears to the Lieutenant-Governor that five hours of school work with five hours of industrial labour each day would possibly admit of more relaxation. The health of the boys was remarkably good throughout the year.

5. The total expenditure during the year was Rs. 8,797-5-3, and the daily average number of boys 48·57. The average cost of each boy was slightly over Rs. 181; the average cost per boy at the Alipore Reformatory in the same year was Rs. 163-12-1. At Hazaribagh it will no doubt diminish as the number of boys increases and the working of the institution becomes more settled. The contingencies amounted to Rs. 1,139-1-8. Rupees 36 were expended on construction and repairs, Rs. 1,639-3-3 on diet, Rs. 68-4-7 on hospital charges, Rs. 315-6-7 on clothing, and Rs. 5,599-5-2 on fixed establishment.

6. The progress in the education of the boys is reported to be satisfactory. They can all read and write in the vernacular, and eight of the most advanced boys have made considerable advancement in English. A second school-master was entertained from May 1883. The Superintendent remarks that the acquisition of English, besides being a good mental exercise, should aid a good workman in obtaining a situation in one of the large Calcutta or railway work-shops. So long as the instruction in English does not interfere with the main aim of the reformatory system, which is to enable the boys to earn their living by handicrafts, it is unobjectionable; but it is not desirable that the course of instruction in the school should tend to add to the already overcrowded ranks of applicants for clerkships.

7. The value of the work performed during the past year is stated to be Rs. 1,528-2-7, and of this amount Rs. 631-12-3 were paid into the treasury, Rs. 180-13-10 supplied to other departments, Rs. 620-8-6 manufactured goods in stock, and Rs. 95 outstanding. Besides this a well valued at Rs. 250 was dug. The total profit, including the value of the well, is stated at Rs. 1,186-9-4, an average of Rs. 24-7 per boy. The net profit from the garden was Rs. 344-5-9, from carpentry Rs. 641-7-6, from tin-work Rs. 28-8-6. Carpentry is the principal industry taught in the school, and there has been a steady increase in the profits.

8. Dr. Cobb, the Superintendent, has taken great interest in his work, and the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to notice that Mr. Hill, the Deputy Superintendent, is reported to have performed his duties in the most zealous and efficient way. The school has been under the regular supervision of a Committee, whose advice and assistance are cordially recognized by the Superintendent.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Inspector-General of Jails, for information, and for communication to the Superintendent of the Hazaribagh Reformatory School.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

The Reports for the years 1881 and 1882, and the orders of Government recorded thereon.

OWING to the sudden and serious illness of Dr. Lethbridge, the Inspector-General of Jails, at the commencement of this year, the Annual Report on the Jail Department for 1883 has been received five weeks later than in the preceding year.

2. The most noticeable points in the jail administration for the past year, as compared with that of 1882, are the considerable fall in the death-rate of all classes of prisoners and a continued decrease in the daily average of the jail population. There has been a general improvement in discipline with a diminution in the number of corporal punishments, and an increase of sentences of simple solitary confinement, i.e., solitary confinement unaccompanied by reduced diet. In its financial aspect, notwithstanding a rise in the average cost of dieting prisoners, the returns show a diminished total expenditure, even including the outlay on new buildings by the Public Works Department, a decrease in the profits derived from jail manufactures, and an increase in the charge for establishment.

3. The statistics of convicts in the year 1883, as compared with the previous eight years, are given in the table below:—

The number of convicts admitted direct thus fell from 31,710 to 29,763, a decrease of 1,947, or over 6 per cent. In 1882, a year of low prices in grain, there was a slight increase under this head as compared with the year preceding it. At the end of 1883 prices began to rise, and there was apprehension of scarcity, yet the number of direct admissions shows a diminution greater than has occurred in any year since 1880. This diminution in the number of admissions took place in 19 districts: in seven the decrease amounted in the aggregate to 2,080, ranging from 587 in Jessore to 211 in the 24-Pergunnahs. On the other hand, there was an increase under this head in nine districts, amounting to 1,055. It is difficult to account with exact certainty for these local fluctuations, which, it may be remarked, are in no instance large. Six of the nine districts were in Bengal, and in these certainly no apprehension of scarcity could have operated in the direction of an increase of crime. It is most probable, therefore, that these fluctuations are due to causes more or less accidental. Among these may be named the differing degrees of strictness with which the supervision over bad characters is maintained by different Magistrates, a diminution or increase in the expenditure of local capital in the employment of the day-labourer class, the strict or lax enforcement of local laws, and the movements of criminal tribes. Excluding, however, the increase in the exceptional year 1878, and a small nominal increase in 1882, the decline in the jail population and the number of prisoners admitted direct has, during the last eight years, been considerable and continuous. This result, the Lieutenant-Governor believes, is due chiefly to the improved material condition of the common people and better general administration. The subject is one which, as the Inspector-General remarks, affects police rather than jail administration, but it is noteworthy, from a prison standpoint, as affording an indication whether the discipline in our jails has not become less deterrent to criminals than formerly. The table below shows the total daily average population of convicts in central, district, and subsidiary jails:—

	1880.		1881.		1882.		1883.

4. With a decrease in the gross convict population, as shown by the daily average distribution, the percentage of the total number confined in central jails has risen from 47·87 in 1880 to 55·91 per cent. in 1883, though the average population confined in them has fallen in the same period from 7,983 to 7,665. It will be the object of Government to continue to increase this percentage, as the central jails are healthier, and the work and discipline, under the supervision of specially selected officers, are better than in district jails.

5. The decrease in the number of prisoners transferred, and of those released under the remission rules, appears almost entirely due to the reduction in the number of prisoners, and calls for no special remark. The number of those released on medical grounds has risen from 13 in 1881 to 41 in 1883. Each case was specially reported to Government for orders under sections 487 to 491 of the Bengal Jail Rules. Care was taken that the provisions of these Rules were not used for the purpose of reducing the nominal death-rates of jails, but were applied in cases where it seemed the clemency of Government might fitly be exercised. Of the prisoners released on other grounds, ten seamen, who were at the time undergoing short terms of imprisonment for petty offences in the Presidency Jail, were discharged on the application of the Port Officer, conditionally on their being immediately shipped and leaving Calcutta. Seven Bhootiyas were, in July 1881, convicted of a kidnapping raid into British territory, and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment at Darjeeling. Of these, one died, and the sentences of the remaining six were remitted in May 1883, in consideration of their good conduct and of their health having greatly deteriorated while in jail.

6. In 1883 the number of prisoners transported beyond seas was 516 males and 55 females, the total being 53 more than in 1882 and 95 less than in 1881. Of 678 prisoners received in 1883 for transportation, no less than 138 were rejected by the Medical Board as unfit. Of these, 86 were from Bengal and 52 from other Provinces. The Medical Board rejected 62 in 1881 and 82 in 1882, out of 728 and 559 respectively; while the rejections in 1883 were over 20 per cent. of the total number of prisoners received for transportation. Complaints have occasionally been received from the Port Blair authorities that persons unfit for transportation have been passed by the Board in Calcutta. On the other hand, Superintendents of Jails sometimes complain that the Board's examination is too strict and the standard of fitness too high. The result of recent enquiries into this matter has been to satisfy the Lieutenant-Governor that the Medical Board perform their duties, not only with the ability which might confidently be looked for in such a body, but also with all possible care and thoroughness. It is not possible that, among several hundred persons examined, diseases, the symptoms of which are obscure, should not sometimes escape detection by the Board at Alipore. The medical officers of the jails, on the other hand, have every facility for the close observation of convicts sentenced to transportation. The number of such prisoners in each jail is few, their previous history known, and the time for the observation of doubtful cases greater than that at the disposal of the Board. The fact, therefore, that convicts whom the local medical officers have certified to be in good health and fit for transportation are so frequently rejected appears to indicate the necessity for greater care and watchfulness in the preliminary enquiries held before granting certificates. The Medical Board at Alipore will be requested for the future to bring to the notice of Government, through the Inspector-General of Jails, cases in which grants of certificates of fitness for transportation and freedom from disease are given on conspicuously insufficient grounds The Lieutenant-Governor desires for the future to be assured that the preliminary examination of these convicts shall not be perfunctory, but shall be such as will ensure the elimination of at least the majority of unfit cases, the second and final one at Alipore by the Board merely checking and supplementing it.

7. The total number of prisoners transported from Burmah and received into Bengal jails under the arrangements made in 1881 was, according to the last quarterly return of the year under review, 70. Of those, 17 were on the last day of the year confined in the Alipore Jail, four each in the Presidency and Midnapore Central Jails, three each in the Buxar Central Jail and Gya, two in each of 16 other jails, and one each in Bankoora and Darjeeling. Of the 36 Burmans received in 188·, no less than five have died, of what diseases is not shown; while the one who, it was stated in paragraph 6 of the Resolution on the Jail Administration Report of 1882, had become insane, was transferred to a lunatic asylum during the year under report. Two escaped from the Berhampore Jail, but were recaptured, and two more attempted to break out of the Patna Jail With the above exceptions, their conduct has been good, and the Superintendent of the Buxar Central Jail has reported that the five Burmans confined in it are useful in manufactures and easy to manage. Still, as noticed last year, these foreign life-convicts are a difficult class to deal with, and in view of the probability that their number might in time become inconveniently large, the Lieutenant-Governor, shortly after the close of the year 1883, represented the matter to the Government of India, stating that it was undesirable that more than two of them should be confined in one jail, and asking that other Governments might be invited to share with Bengal the responsibility of a troublesome charge. The Government of India have replied that, although the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oude had consented to receive 15 Burmese life-convicts annually, and the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces had been asked to arrange for the confinement of five more, yet the total number of life and long-term prisoners in Burma under sentence of transportation had of late so largely increased that the existing arrangement under which twenty are annually sent to these Provinces should not be disturbed. The number of Burmese. convicts in each jail must necessarily therefore be increased. The Inspector-General of Jails has made no remark on the general behaviour of these prisoners; but the remark of the Superintendent of the Buxar Central Jail, above referred to, seems to show that, if properly and firmly treated, the Burmans are amenable to discipline and may become useful workers. As more Burmans are received, it will be advisable to increase the numbers confined in central jails, as these are under stricter discipline, are more healthily situated, and afford less chance of escape than the ordinary district jails. In dealing with this subject in future administration reports the Inspector-General of Jails should give fuller information regarding the offences to which these prisoners have been most prone, of their general health and conduct in jail, and of the work in which they have been found most apt.

The number of prisoners executed during the past year was 35, the same as in that which preceded it.

8 The revised form prescribed by the Government of India in Resolution No. 19—1349-59, dated the 12th September 1882, shows the religion, age, and previous occupation of convicts admitted into the jails and subsidiary jails during the year, instead of showing, as formerly, these details regarding convicts confined therein on the last day of the year. No comparison can therefore be made between the figures of the year under review and those of previous years. Of the total number admitted, 2·05 per cent. were Christians, 40·82 Musulmans, 54·12 Hindus, 3·01 Buddhists and persons of other religions.

Of the Christians, 383 are returned as Europeans, 168 as Eurasians, and 58 as natives. The Europeans were, for the most part, confined for short terms and for trivial offences.

9. The percentage of male prisoners admitted, of ages between 16 and 40, was 75·18; of those between 40 and 60, 20·89; of those over 60, 2·91; and of those under 16, 1·02 of the total. Of the latter class there were 289 admissions, of which 93 were into subsidiary and 196 into other jails. There are at present two reformatories—one at Alipore, the other at Hazaribagh—for the confinement of juvenile offenders. The report on the former for the year 1883 has been received, and shows that there were 30 admissions during the year and 79 boys remaining at the close of that year. The boys were employed under instruction as blacksmiths, book-binders, cane-workers, carpenters, and tinsmiths, and good reports were received regarding the majority of those who had been released. From the report on the Hazaribagh Reformatory, the Lieutenant-Governor learns with satisfaction that the boys in it, now about 58 in number, are working well, and that their behaviour is generally good. There is reason to believe that the practice of sending children to jail still continues in spite of the orders issued on this subject. Of the 196 boys under the age of 16 sent to jails it can hardly be doubted that a considerable proportion ought to have been sent to the reformatories. There is accommodation at the Alipore institution for 100, and at the Hazaribagh, if necessary, for 200 boys. Until these institutions are full no youthful offender should, as a rule be sent to a jail. The Inspector-General of Jails will be requested to bring to the notice of Government any case in which it appears that the orders on this subject have been overlooked or disregarded by Magistrates. The statement referred to in the last paragraph shows that of 28,398 male convicts admitted, 16,688, or over 58 per cent., were of the agricultural classes; but, for reasons already given, no comparison can be made between these figures and those of former years.

10. There was in 1883 an increase in the proportion of sentences of from one to three months' imprisonment as compared with 1882, the percentage having risen from 7·74 to 9·40. The Officiating Inspector-General of Jails, from observations made as Magistrate, is inclined to attribute this increase to a tendency on the part of some officers exercising summary powers to save themselves trouble by giving sentences of not more than three months in cases where they would, if not vested with such powers, inflict more severe punishment. It is not shown on what precise grounds the Inspector-General bases this opinion. If a recourse is had to the summary procedure for such a purpose only, the practice is most reprehensible. As, however, only specially selected officers are vested with summary powers, the Lieutenant-Governor is not prepared to accept, without further proof, the conclusion at which Mr. Westmacott has arrived. Further enquiries will be made on this point. The increased percentage of short sentences is susceptible of the explanation that it is due to a larger proportion of petty offences. The length of sentences has not otherwise greatly varied.

11. The number of female prisoners admitted direct was 1,566, 113 more than in 1882, but the total number imprisoned was 2,463, being 219 less than in the year preceding. The death-rate among them rose from 55·2 to 72·3 per mille, and the number of deaths in and out of hospital in 1882 and 1883 were 41 and 36 respectively. The Russa Jail, in the suburbs of Calcutta, was established for long-term female prisoners, before the construction of the Central Jails at Midnapore, Bhagulpore, Rajshahye, Hazaribagh and Dacca, when the female wards of the district jails were overcrowed. Sufficient accommodation for female prisoners is now available; and as serious irregularities, the consequence of the difficulty of close supervision, had been brought to light, the Russa Jail was closed at the end of 1883. In future all female prisoners from Calcutta and the 24-Pergunnahs, including those whose imprisonment may be ordered by the Small Cause Court, Calcutta, will be imprisoned in the Alipore Jail, other female prisoners being confined in the Central Jails of their respective circles. The average daily strength of the female convicts in the Russa Jail was, in 1883, 136·15. This jail has always been very unhealthy, the average mortality for the ten years previous to that under report having been 78·8 per mille. Under the new arrangements it is expected that the ratio of deaths among female convicts will sensibly diminish.

12. The number of re-convicted prisoners admitted into jail was 3,540, or 11·89 per cent. of the total number admitted. In 1882 there were 3,439, or 10·84 per cent. of the total. The calculation of the percentage in former years of previously convicted prisoners being made on the number of those in jail on the last day of the year, instead of on the number of admissions during the year, no comparison of figures can be made with any advantage. The Lieutenant-Governor believes that Magistrates, as a rule, do their utmost to ascertain the previous convictions of persons accused before them by calling for police enquiry and reports, and by sending the accused for recognition to district and central jails. The present system, however, is not perfect. The worst criminals are those whose offences are not known at their homes or in the jails in their neighbourhood, who wander to distant places in the commission of crime, and, when convicted, give false names and false places of residence. The previous convictions of such offenders it is at present most difficult to trace, and their number will probably increase with the facilities of communication. The efforts of the police in ascertaining and recording their antecedent histories might perhaps be much aided if Superintendents of Jails communicated to the police and to each other the descriptive rolls of persons suspected to be habitual criminals concealing their true names and districts, with the facts discovered regarding them after admission. Though beset with difficulties, the endeavour to secure satisfactory registers of re-convictions deserves attention. The number of persons confined, in default of security, for bad livelihood has fallen from 689 to 612; that of persons imprisoned pending trial fell from 27,108 to 26,091, the daily average being 1,065. The average period of detention of prisoners pending trial was 14·90 days in 1883, an increase of ·08 days over the previous year, although the number of prisoners was 1,017 less. This is the more unsatisfactory because the proportion of petty convictions was considerably greater, as before noticed, than in the preceding year. The average term of detention in the Dacca, Burdwan, Hooghly, Sarun, Gya, and Chumparun districts has much increased in comparison with the previous year, though that in Dacca and Hooghly was less than in 1881. It should be the duty of all official visitors to jails to bring to the notice of the Magistrate of the district any case in which an under-trial prisoner has been confined for an undue length of time. Magistrates themselves, in their weekly visits to the jails, should carefully attend to this important matter.

13 The total number of civil prisoners confined in the jails in 1883, including 221 remaining on the last day of the previous year, and 3,290 admitted during the year, was 3,511. Of these, 3,257 were released, 35 were transferred, one died, and one escaped, leaving 217 in jail at the close of 1883. The number admitted was, however, 113 less than in 1882, and the daily average 249·0 against 252 7 in that year. This subject was referred to in paragraph 9 of the Resolution on the Jail Report for 1882. During the past year there has been no increase in the number of civil prisoners, but the reverse The necessity for considering the question of increased accommodation for this class of prisoners does not therefore arise

14. The following table shows the expenditure incurred in 1882 and 1883 on major original works, minor original works, and repairs:—

	Major original works.		Minor original works.		Repairs.		Total.
	1882.	1883.	1882.	1883.	1882.	1883.	1882.	1883.

The chief items of expenditure were Rs. 74,437 on the conversion of the Dacca District Jail into a Central Jail, Rs. 57,977 on extending the Central Jail at Buxar, Rs. 22,474 chiefly on providing accommodation for female prisoners at Alipore, Rs. 9,459 principally on a residence for the Superintendent at Midnapore, Rs. 44,734 at Gya, where a first class district jail has been built, Rs. 39,456 on a first class jail at the district of Durbhunga,

Rs. 23,324 on improvements in Purulia, Rs. 21,549 at Bogra, Rs. 13,549 at Singbhoom, Rs. 7,173 at Julpigoree, Rs. 12,020 at Lohardugga respectively for the construction of third class jails: and for additions and improvements, Rs. 12,497 at Darjeeling, Rs. 12,660 at Mymensingh, and Rs. 9,282 at Rungpore The actual expenditure was little more than half of that in the year preceding, but most of the larger works begun in 1878 are either finished or approaching completion. Nothing has been done during the year on the additional works at Chupra, Patna, Noakholly, Tipperah, Jessore, and Maldah, recommended by the Inspector-General of Jails in his report for 1882. Considerable alterations were, however, effected in the Khoolna jail, and progress was made in the masonry buildings at Manbhoom. The completion of the more important and more expensive jail buildings will, the Lieutenant-Governor hopes, allow of funds being applied in the course of the next few years to the additional improvements suggested. The subsidiary jails in the eastern districts are notoriously insecure, and the gradual substitution for them of a better class of buildings will have to be undertaken. With the completion of these projects, the requirements of the Jail Department will have been sufficiently met. The daily average number of prisoners employed on jail buildings has fallen from 3,538 in 1882 to 2,591 in 1883, the jails at Dacca and Rajshahye alone showing an increase.

15. The scheme of substituting warder guards for police in all Bengal jails, sanctioned in 1882, is not so favourably reported on by the Inspector-General as for the two years previous to 1883. Their discipline is stated to be lax; there is a difficulty in obtaining recruits; resignations, dismissals, and desertions are numerous in different divisions. The Inspector-General, however, proceeds:— "Although there is much room for improvement in the warder force, I do not think them inferior to the police, for whom they have been substituted. I believe the police officers in those districts in which recruits are difficult to obtain, and discipline bad on account of sickness, find the same causes of complaint with reference to constables as those which impair the efficiency of the jail guards; and, moreover, it is reported in several cases that service in the police is more popular than that in jails, and it must not be forgotten that on account of the strict discipline in the jail guards when furnished by the police, and the comparatively few opportunities of obtaining irregular emolument, it used to be the custom to send constables from the thanas to serve in the jails as a punishment. It appears to me, therefore, necessary to render the jail service more attractive than the police, and to give some compensation for the irksome discipline, the want of liberty, and the difficulty of making irregular profit, whereas I find the men asking in vain for the same pension rules as the police. I see no hope of making the jail warder service thoroughly efficient until I see that a recruit will rather enter it than enrol himself in the police. I think it worth considering whether the difficulty in obtaining recruits in the Presidency, Burdwan, Rajshahye and Dacca Divisions may not be met by giving recruits their choice between enlisting for their own division only or for general service in the province, and by giving some extra pay to those who select the latter." With regard to the question of pensions, the Lieutenant-Governor has, since the close of the year, sanctioned the re-admission to the benefits of the special police pension rules, on payment of arrears, with interest at 6 per cent. per annum, of the men transferred from the Police to the Jail Department as warders, who, since their transfer, have ceased to pay their contribution. The Inspector-General has also been asked to submit a separate report on the subject of the pension of other jail warders for consideration. The proposal contained in the last sentence of the Inspector-General's remarks quoted above is also one which must be separately dealt with, and the Lieutenant-Governor cannot, in the absence of details, express an opinion on its merits. The number of escapes from jails was 13, the same as in the year preceding, but those from subsidiary jails have increased from 7 in 1882 to 19 in 1883. In every one of the 13 escapes from jails, negligent guarding appears to have been the cause, and the Lieutenant-Governor agrees with Mr. Westmacott in the opinion that there is still something to be desired in the amount of supervision over the warders, both paid and convict. Still, as remarked last year, the number of escapes from jails has greatly decreased during the last few years, and in 1882 and 1883 they were not one-twelfth of the number in 1872. When, too, it is considered that in 37 out of the 47 jails in Bengal there was not a single escape throughout the whole of the year under report, the general results are quite satisfactory. The particulars given as regards the 19 escapes from subsidiary jails show that these were largely due to the want of security in the buildings. Thirty officials, 27 salaried and three convict, were punished for neglect of duty in connection with the escapes of the year. Of the 32 convicts who escaped, 20 were recaptured, besides four prisoners who had escaped in previous years.

16. A scheme for dividing sleeping wards into cubicles for the segregation of juvenile offenders and the worst class of habitual criminals was approved early in 1883 for introduction into 14 jails. The cubicles are on the model of some referred to in the Report on the Administration of the Jails of the Madras Presidency for 1880, as being in use at the Madras Penitentiary, the beds being separated by wire-netting and wooden posts. Only one compartment of a sleeping ward in each of the 14 jails will at first be provided with the cubicles as an experiment. The Inspector-General of Jails has not stated in his report how far they have been introduced; but if the results are as good as anticipated, the scheme will be gradually extended as funds can be made available.

17. The state of prison discipline during the year is reported to have been satisfactory. The total offences committed by prisoners amounted to 48,580, an increase as compared with 1882 of 10, and a decrease as compared with 1881 of 1,169 offences. The ratio of total punishments to the daily average number of convicts has increased from 320·77 in 1881 to 328·18 and 354·22 in 1882 and 1883 respectively. The number of convicts remaining at the close of 1882, and of those admitted in 1883, amounted to 59,639, and thus the percentage of convicts who committed offences was 81·4. In 1881 this percentage was 76·7; in 1882, 77·4. The offences recorded during the years 1881, 1882, and 1883 are given in the following table:—

Year.	Criminal offences.	Breaches of Jail Rules.		Other offences against prison discipline.	Total offences.
		Smoking or possessing forbidden articles.	Offences relating to work.
1881	111	3,711	27,963	17,964	49,749
1882	76	3,604	26,602	18,288	48,570
1883	88	3,020	26,852	18,620	48,580

The number of offences punished by the criminal courts has thus slightly risen as compared with 1882, though it is less than in 1881. Offences of smoking and possessing forbidden articles have much decreased, and unless this diminution is due to non-detection, it indicates improved vigilance and honesty on the part of the jail warders.

The following statement shows the punishments of the past three years:—

Year.	By criminal courts.	Solitary confinement.	Reduced diet.	Solitary confinement and reduced diet.	Corporal punishment.	All other punishments.	Total punishments.	Ratio of total punishments to daily average number of prisoners.	Ratio of corporal punishments to total number of all other inflicted on male prisoners.
1881	101	2,463	9,411	2,238	914	34,593	49,740	320·77	1·94
82	79	3,067	5,087	3,098	416	36,827	48,574	328·18	0·98
1883 ...	77	3,201	2,365	2,347	349	40,170	48,569	354·22	0·74

It is most satisfactory to notice that the great reduction which has been made during the past two years in punishments by whipping and penal diet has not perceptibly been followed by an increase in the total number of punishments. The number of whippings has fallen from 8,232 in 1879 to 349; and the number of prisoners sentenced to reduction of diet from 16,314 in 1880 to 2,365. More than half of the latter punishments were for offences relating to work, 194 were for smoking and having forbidden articles in possession, 112 for quarrelling and talking, 75 for insubordination and malingering, 74 for stealing and spoiling jail property. The numbers of prisoners sentenced to reduction of diet at Midnapore District and Central, Bhagulpore Central and Bogra Jails, were very large, being 508, 413 and 298 respectively, and in two of them, the Midnapore and Bogra Jails, the ratio per mille of deaths to the daily average number of prisoners was very high.

18. In reviewing the Administration Report of the Bengal Jails for 1882, and the Resolution of this Government thereon, the Government of India remarked as follows:—

"The number of jail offences again showed an increase during the year under report. It is unsatisfactory to observe that these figures show no signs of diminution. The percentage of breaches of jail discipline to the total number of male convicts as gauged by the statistics given in the annual reports has been excessively high during the last four years, and the proportion is far higher than in any other province. The high ratios of the years from 1879 to 1882 are ascribed to the more careful registration of offences, and to improved supervision on the part of jail officers. The Government of India are willing to accept this explanation as accounting in part for these generally high rates At the same time the Governor-General in Council is constrained to observe that the improved system of registration, on which the Inspector-General relies in explanation of the figures, has been in force now for some years. It is difficult to believe that, as compared with former years, the system has been worked so much more thoroughly of late as to account completely for this general deterioration in the conduct of the prisoners. I am to suggest that possibly the infliction in a few cases of more exemplary punishments than are ordinarily imposed might do something to reduce the number of petty offences. I am also to suggest that, in view of the fact that most of these offences are in connection with work, some enquiry should be made as to how the tasks imposed in Bengal compare with those in other provinces. There is undoubtedly some radical difference of system either in the manner of dealing with jail offences, or in the character of the task work." On receiving this letter the Lieutenant-Governor desired the Inspector-General of Jails, Bengal, to place himself in communication with the Inspectors-General of Prisons, North-Western Provinces and Oude, the Punjab, Madras, British Burmah, and Assam, on the plan adopted in those provinces for the registration of offences. The result of the enquiries made confirms the opinion previously expressed by this Government that the large number of offences shown in the jails of these Provinces, as compared with others, is due only to the fact that all offences, however trivial, which may be brought to notice, are carefully and precisely recorded in Bengal, and that no penalties for such registered offences are ever imposed except under the orders of the Superintendent of the Jail. The Inspector-General observes that the great difference lies, "not so much in the amount of task exacted, as in the fact that the system of recording offences adopted in Bengal is diametrically opposed to that existing in other Provinces. We in Bengal consider an insignificant number of offences recorded as a direct indication of failure on the part of subordinate officials to measure tasks, examine the quality of the work, and notice offences against jail discipline. In most of the other Provinces it would seem as if a small number of offence is supposed to indicate good management.....As long as this view prevails in high quarters, Statement VI might as well be cancelled as an annual jail return, for it can never indicate, even approximately, the truth as to the number of breaches of rules which have been committed during the year." Dr. Lethbridge's remarks are borne out by facts adduced regarding the task-work and punishments in the jails of other Provinces; and the practice of a detailed record daily of every kind of offence in the Bengal jails was tested and proved to be correct by the personal examination of the registers of all the jails visited during his tours by the Lieutenant-Governor. The nominal increase in the percentage of jail offences to the number of convicts began when a strict record of petty offences was insisted upon. Before 1879 there were jails in which no record was made of petty offences, the punishment registers showing that for days and weeks together there had been no offences. This nominal increase has been maintained with no very marked fluctuations, except perhaps in 1880, ever since. It is an increase not necessarily or even probably in the number of offences, but in the number of those recorded. The period at which this change was made coincided, it is true, with that at which the discouragement of the punishments of flogging and reduced diet for petty offences began ; but that the latter was not the cause of the nominal increase is conclusively proved by the fact that the number of the lighter forms of punishment has not increased in anything like the ratio in which the number of these severer punishments have been diminished. The Lieutenant-Governor is therefore unable to believe that the infliction in a few cases of more exemplary punishments than are ordinarily imposed, as suggested by the Government of India, would have any appreciable effect on the number of petty offences, the punishments of which in a vast majority of cases consist only of warnings and reprimands and similar expressions of censure.

19. The percentage of convict officers, male and female, to the daily average number of prisoners, increased from 7·02 and 6 98 in 1881 and 1882 to 7·06 in 1883, the increase being rather larger in the number of the male than of the female officers. The number of punishments inflicted on them was somewhat less in the year under review than in that preceding it, being 1,473 as compared with 1,578. The mark system is reported to work well, and to be understood by the prisoners ; but the average remission gained by prisoners sentenced to two years' imprisonment has varied very slightly during the last five years.

20. The total expenditure for the year, excluding that on new buildings by the Public Works Department, was Rs. 10,32,695, as against Rs 10,36,212 in 1882. This is the lowest expenditure since 1875, except that in 1881, when grain was abnormally cheap. The cost of dieting the prisoners, however, rose from Rs. 3,06,138 in 1882 to Rs. 3,16,649 in 1883, although the daily average number of the prisoners confined fell in the same period from 16,155 to 15,026 ; the average cost of each prisoner thus rose f om Rs. 64-2-3 to Rs. 68-11-7. The increase in the cost of diet is chiefly due to the great increase in the cost of cereals, more particularly in the latter part of the year, throughout these Provinces The average prices of the chief articles of prison diet for the last five years are given in the following table :—

	1883.	1882.	1881.	1880.	1879.
	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.
Rice	1 15 1	1 9 0	1 7 6	2 0 3	2 15 0
Wheat (flour)	4 3 2	4 7 0	4 1 3	4 9 5	5 5 0
Maize	1 7 3	1 2 3	1 1 5	1 9 5	2 0 3
Dâl	2 6 5	2 3 6	2 1 6	2 11 10	3 15 0
Meat	7 13 5	7 1 9	7 1 0	7 4 1	7 5 0
Fish	8 2 10	7 3 0	7 6 7	7 10 0	7 14 0
Salt	3 5 9	3 8 6	4 5 8	4 7 3	4 10 0

The general rise in the price of cereals was, however, not the only cause of the increased cost of dieting the prisoners. The Inspector-General also ascribes it to the more common practice adopted by medical officers in improving the food of prisoners whenever their health appeared to require it. Changes in the fixed diet-scale were frequent. Increased expenditure on diet must, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, be a secondary consideration to the health of the prisoners, and, so long as it is not incurred without due cause, cannot be objected to. There appears no ground for supposing that increased diet was in any case allowed unnecessarily. Indeed, as the Inspector-General remarks, the jails which show an expenditure above the average under this head were those in which the changes in the fixed diet scale were not only frequent, but had to be continued for medical reasons almost throughout the year. In the Manchee Jail, the cost of animal food alone amounted to Rs 700. In Loharduggа, from 23rd June to 31st August, one chittack of extra meat and vegetables were issued to all prisoners on account of the high rate of sickness and mortality among them. From 7th May to 31st August two chittacks of dahi were issued to each labouring prisoner in lieu of dâl. From 1st September one chittack of meat or dahi was allowed in place of one chittack of dâl. In the Julpigoree Jail meat was issued twice and dahi once a week to all prisoners from January to 17th July. In all such matters, subject to the Inspector-General's control, a large discretion must be left in the hands of the local medical authorities. Excluding the Presidency (European) jail, the five jails in which the average expenditure per prisoner for diet compared with the year 1882 was highest were—

	1883. Rs. A. P.	1882. Rs. A. P.
Darjeeling	34 3 1	34 13 8
Lohardugga	26 0 0	17 10 9
Julpigoree	25 12 6	23 9 5
Dacca	24 13 6	20 0 1
Hazaribagh	24 9 4	20 2 9

and the five in which this expenditure was lowest were—

Bhagulpore	17 5 9	15 8 2
Singbhoom	16 15 7	11 9 6
Pooree	15 15 4	13 7 5
Manbhoom	15 5 7	15 10 10
Jessore	14 6 7	16 4 10

21. The charge for establishment, which was in 1882 Rs. 3,76,450, rose to Rs. 4,06,847. The increase was thus Rs. 30,397. The scheme for the substitution of warders in place of police constables in reserve guards, which had already been carried out in 15 of the jails, was, in December 1882, sanctioned for extension to the remaining district and central jails, Alipore excepted. The increase was also partly due to the opening of the new jail at Khoolna, and to an increase in the salaries of 15 of the warders in the reserve guard employed in the Presidency Jail, and other small items. The expenditure on police fell from Rs 31,249 to Rs. 3,701 in consequence of their abolition as reserve guards.

22. The average cost per head of sick in hospital rose from Rs. 44-3-7 and Rs. 50-10-11 in 1881 and 1882 respectively to Rs. 55-13-2 in 1883, the increase being attributed partly to increased cost of provisions, and partly to greater liberality in the treatment of the sick. The cost of clothing in jails decreased from Rs. 64,231, an average cost per head of Rs 4-3-9 in 1882, to Rs. 50,169, an average of Rs. 3-8- 0 in 1883, and is lower than any year since 1878, except 1881. The diminution was chiefly due to the smaller number of admissions and to the fact that some clothing indented for in 1882 was not brought into use till 1883. The charge for contingencies was Rs. 55,481, showing a small increase of Rs. 404 over the preceding year. The table given in paragraph 72 of the Report shows the average cost per prisoner in each jail in Bengal. The four most economically managed jails are shown to be those at Jessore, Manbhoom, Pooree and Singbhoom, while the four in which the expenditure was highest are, excluding the Presidency Jail for Europeans, Darjeeling, Khoolna, Julpigoree and Dacca District and Central. It is doubtful, as regards the Jessore Jail, whether the economy in its management has been justifiable. The Inspector-General reports that he finds that the prisoners have not been fed according to the fixed diet-scale, but almost entirely on rice and vegetables. The consequence of this has apparently been that the prisoners have lost weight to a serious extent, and that their clothing is very indifferent. The Inspector-General, who has since visited the jail, has been requested to make a full report on the result of his inspection. As regards the four jails in which the expenditure has been highest, the one at Darjeeling is of course exceptional, the Julpigoree Jail has been so during the past year owing to its unhealthiness and the consequent necessity for supplying the prisoners with increased rations; while in the Dacca and Khoolna jails, large quantities of vegetables have had to be purchased. In both these jails, certainly in the latter, it is expected that the necessity for doing so in future will be obviated.

23. The decrease in the average number of prisoners sentenced to labour has been continuous for the last five years. In 1883 the number was 13,494·80, being 1,074·57 less than in 1882. Of these, 2,071 were employed on prison duties either as officers or servants, 729 in gardening, 403 in preparing articles for prison use, 199 in jail repairs, 2,392 on jail buildings either under the Superintendent or the Public Works Department, and 5,847 on manufactures. The only instances of extramural employment of prisoners by the Public Works

Department appears to have been at Julpigoree, where, in May 1883, some prisoners being sent into camp on account of an outbreak of cholera in the jail, 394 of them were employed in repairing some houses for their own accommodation. In two instances, at Noakholly and Cuttack, a small number of prisoners was employed by the Municipality. In consequence of the completion of many of the larger jail buildings, fewer convicts were employed in building than in 1882, in which year the daily average number was 3,376. The rest of the labouring prisoners were engaged on manufactures, the percentage of convicts so employed to the total average number being 43·32 as against 39·12 in the previous year

24. The new form of statement prescribed by the Government of India shows the net cash earnings of convicts sentenced to labour, instead of the result of their employment during the year ; and the details formerly required regarding the value of raw materials, manufactured articles, outstanding bills, and other items of debits and credits are no longer required. The following table shows the cash earnings for 1882 and 1883 :—

	1882.			1883.

The difference in cash earnings, therefore, between 1882 and 1883, as calculated according to the new method, is Rs. 48,936-8 in favour of the former year. The result of the year's manufacturing operations, however, calculated according to the method which has hitherto been in use as shown by the Inspector-General, gives a profit of Rs. 3,52,730 less by Rs. 1,09,289 than that of 1882. The Inspector General observes—"Many causes have brought about this result. The uncertainty that followed the Government of India Resolution on jail manufactures has had its effect. This has been pretty general, although it has affected some jails, notably Bhagulpore, more than others. Then a very unfavourable market for gunnies, with a high rate for the raw material, has seriously lowered the profits of one of our most paying jails. The lower rates for printing at the Presidency Jail Press have also ruled for a whole year; hence the decreased earning at that institution." The average earnings of the prisoners in the central jails varied from Rs. 70-3 at the Presidency to 1 anna at the Dacca Jail. At the Alipore Jail the excess of credits over debits was Rs. 1,10,714-13, an average earning per prisoner of Rs. 57-9, being Rs. 32,350-3 less than in 1882. The price of jute was throughout 1883 abnormally high, and the factory suffered in common with free labour factories. At the Presidency Jail the rates accepted by the Government of India Press in their contract with Mr. Ellis have been in force since August 1882. The total earnings amounted to Rs. 83,424-10, out of which Rs. 79,309-7-6 were earned by press work. The minor industries of the jail were wheat-grinding and the making of elephant gear for the Commissariat Department. At the Buxar Central Jail an average of 443·44, out of an average of 926·29, prisoners sentenced to labour was employed on manufactures. In 1883 the nominal profits fell from Rs. 31,853 in 1882 to Rs. 17,337, the profit in 1881 having been Rs. 10,145. The bulk of the manufactures in this jail are from Government in the shape of police and prisoners' clothing. In 1882 a new industry, that of tent-making, was started; but it does not appear to have been as yet very successful. At first great complaint was made by the officers to whom they had been supplied of the inferior quality of the tents. Steps were therefore at once taken to remedy the defects pointed out. The Inspector-General now reports that in this respect satisfactory progress has been made, and that the quality of the cloths, &c., now used is so good that the tents cannot be made for the contract rate. and that this industry has been carried on at a loss. This, Mr. Westmacott thinks, will not continue, and that, when this manufacture has become more established and understood, larger tasks will be exacted, while a stricter economy of material will grow up with the experience gained from constant practice. The profits of the Bhagulpore Central Jail are reported to have diminished owing to the home demand for carpets having fallen off and to delay in the despatch of certain stores required for the woollen factory. The stores indented for have since been despatched from England. The outturn of coir-matting at the Midnapore Central Jail, where it is the staple industry, is reported to be far in excess of the local demands, and the Inspector-General should consider whether it is worth continuing the manufacture of this article if the demand for it is so limited, and whether some other industry might not profitably be substituted for it. At Rajshahye the decrease in the profits on castor-oil making is attributed to the increased rates for seed, with no corresponding rise in the contract rates for oil. The experiments in silk-worm rearing, commenced last year, are reported to have completely failed. The Hazaribagh Central and the Hooghly District Jail show increased profits, the former in aloe fibre, and the latter in oil-pressing and bag-sewing. At Chittagong the jailor, who has since absconded, embezzled, it has so far been ascertained, Rs. 2,740-13-3. This embezzlement he effected by non-payment into the treasury of money remitted through him, by drawing from the treasury on a forged bill, by non-payment to a creditor of the jail of a sum due for coal, and by fictitious sales. The exact amount of his defalcations has not yet been ascertianed, and the Lieutenant-Governor expects a further report from the Inspector-General on this matter. It is so far evident, however, that these frauds could not have occurred had the Superintendent insisted on the submission of proper vouchers, and personally scrutinized the accounts. Instructions will be issued on this point on the receipt of the further report which has been promised by the Inspector-General. The difficulty of finding suitable, and at the same time fairly, remunerative labour for the prisoners in district jails has been much increased by the now settled policy of transferring all but the comparatively short-term prisoners to central jails. Mr. Rivers Thompson will await the proposals of the Inspector-General. For the present, it will be sufficient for him to call attention to the recommendation of the Prison Conference of 1877 that, so far as possible, district jails should be made branch manufactories subordinate to central jails, the Superintendents of the latter supplying the former with work, and undertaking to dispose of their manufactured products.

25. Owing to the annual deduction of 10 per cent. for wear and tear, the machinery account has been reduced, notwithstanding the introduction of some new machinery into the Darjeeling Jail, from Rs. 5,22,108 to Rs. 4,99,808. The Government of India, by their Resolution No. 20—1406-19, dated 22nd September 1882, prohibited the introduction for the future of steam machinery into any jail, and directed that no European machinery driven by tread-mills, capstans or other applications of convict labour, should be introduced in any jail where it does not now exist. The Lieutenant-Governor requested a reconsideration of this decision. No final decision has yet been communicated, and, as pointed out in the 6th paragraph of this Government letter No. 85P—D, dated 21st April last, the jail manufactures in this Province are in some instances being seriously affected. The Lieutenant-Governor can only repeat the hope already expressed that the settlement of this important question may not be much longer deferred.

26. The new Subsidiary Jail Code came into force from the commencement of the year 1883, and the subsidiary jails are now directly under the general control and supervision of the Inspector-General. The Sub divisional Officer is still the Superintendent acting under the instructions of the District

Magistrate, and bound to report to him all matters of importance affecting his charge; but all correspondence relative to it, together with the bills and returns, is forwarded to the Inspector-General direct. The clerical work continues to be performed by the Assistant Surgeon or Civil Hospital Assistant at the sub-division, when appointed as Deputy Superintendent. The Inspector-General reports that these changes have led to the more punctual and careful submission of bills and returns; but that the management of the subsidiary jails by the sub-divisional officers has not been so well attended to as could be desired. He proposes therefore to issue a form of inspection report on the system of half-marginal answers to printed questions, so that the duty of supervising the details of management may not be evaded. The Lieutenant-Governor has no objection to Mr. Westmacott's proposal, if the report is kept within moderate limits, and the questions are limited to a few really important matters, and do not go too much into detail. The average daily number of prisoners in each subsidiary jail during 1883 was only 8·3, and it is not desirable that sub-divisional officers, who have generally onerous duties to perform, should be burdened with the preparation of unnecessary forms and statements. For the rest, it is the duty of Magistrates of districts to see that the sub-divisional officers do not neglect their duties. The total number of prisoners admitted during the year was 25,606 as against 28,136 in 1882. The daily average number was 674·53, a decrease of 76 09 compared with the preceding year Of these the daily average number of convicts was 264·72, a diminution of 25·84 in the number in 1882. The number of deaths of convicts fell from 13 to 9. The average period of detention of convicts was 7·06 days, and has only slightly varied in the last seven years. The periods of detention at Palamow, Madaripore, Ungool, Bagirhat and Khondmehal ranged from 25·13 to 13·58 days owing to special causes. The number of convicts who escaped and were not recaptured was six against two in 1882. The number of under-trial prisoners admitted was 11,816, a decrease of 1,163, the daily average number being 407·32. There were four deaths among them, one resulting from cholera. In 1882 there were eight deaths. Thirteen escaped and were not recaptured The under-trial prisoners were detained on an average 12·58 days as against 12·88 in 1882 and 11·70 days in 1881. Eight subsidiary jails, viz. those at Chandpore, Raneegunge, Moonsheegunge, Magoorah, Brahmunberiah, Ghattal, Attia, and Netrokona show an average detention of under-trial prisoners of considerably above 19 days, while the first two show an average detention of over 25 and 22 days respectively, and explanations will be called for from the sub-divisional officers concerned. The number of prisoners who escaped from the subsidiary jails was 43, of whom 19 were convicts and 24 under-trial prisoners. Thirteen convicts and 17 under-trial prisoners were recaptured. The warders when in fault appear to have been severely punished. Many of the subsidiary jails, however, are constructed with merely wattled bamboo and plaster, and are therefore so insecure that it is matter for surprise that more escapes do not occur. These buildings are, as funds become available, being gradually replaced by more substantial ones. During the past year the subsidiary jails at Oolooberiah, Gopalgunge, and Giridhi have been built of masonry, and similar buildings were in course of construction at Perozepore, Nowada, and Aurungabad The expenditure of the Public Works Department on subsidiary jail buildings was Rs. 93,029.

Out of a daily average of 215·66 prisoners sentenced to labour, 137·24 were employed on manufactures. It is not stated what was the general nature of the work. The net profits are, however, stated at Rs. 2,297, a decrease of Rs. 57 compared with the preceding year. The employment of prisoners on garden, road-making, or other labour involving the removal of the prisoners from inside the subsidiary jail walls has been forbidden by the new rules. The daily average number of sick was in 1883 only 7·13 as compared with 8·59 in 1882, and the death-rate fell from 46·3 to 33·9 per mille among convicts, and from 17·2 to 9·8 among under-trial prisoners. There was no change in the diet-scale during the year. The rules prescribed by Chapter IX of the new Code, respecting the guarding of these jails, are stated to have worked on the whole satisfactorily, though frequent cases of laxity and mismanagement came to light. The warders employed belong to the district jail establishment, and are liable at any time to transfer, the Superintendent of the district jail making all arrangements for granting leave other than casual. The Superintendents of the subsidiary jails at Kooshtea, Bongong Cutwa, Ghattal Contai, Serampore, Behar, Jehanabad, Buxar, Godda, Goalundo, Jamalpore Kishoregunge, Ungool and Bisipara, will be called on to explain the cause of the few inspections made by them of their respective charges during the year.

28. In paragraph 24 of the Resolution on the Jail Report for 1882, the Lieutenant-Governor, after referring to the steps which had of late years been taken to improve the health of the jail population, expressed the hope that they would "bring about a diminution both in the sickness and mortality in the Bengal jails in the current year," i.e. the year under report. It is with satisfaction that Mr. Rivers Thompson notices that this hope has been realized in both respects.

The vital statistics for the first time since 1878 show a great and decided improvement. The following table shows the sickness and mortality in Bengal jails since 1863 :—

Thus, though the ratio of the daily average sick per mille was only 4·0 less than in the preceding year, the ratio of deaths from all causes was 16·6 less. The ratio of daily average sick was 7·7 per mille above the average of the preceding 20 years; that of deaths was 9·7 below it. This seems to indicate either that the diseases themselves were not so severe as usual, or that the circumstances under which they were treated were more favourable to recovery than before. The sickness and mortality among the prisoners in the Bengal jails have, for some years past, been the subject of most anxious attention on the part of this Government, and every effort has been made to improve the condition of the jails and of their inmates. Large sums have continued to be spent on improving jail buildings; the diet of the prisoners has been varied or increased whenever the health of the prisoners rendered this advisable; a better water-supply has been provided; additional sleeping space has been allotted to the prisoners; and the severer forms of punishment have practically been abolished, except for the grosser offences. Extra-mural labour—a form of employment not well suited to prisoners in these Provinces—has been sparingly resorted to, while the benefit of concentrating prisoners in the healthier central jails has been steadily kept in view. On the outbreak of an epidemic as well as on the occasion of an exceptionally high rate of mortality occurring in any jail, a special enquiry has been held, with the view, if possible, of ascertaining the causes and removing them. Officers in charge of jails continue to lay great stress on the argument advanced in previous years of the death-rate in our jails being largely affected by the health or sickness of the free populatton. The Lieutenant Governor has, in the Resolution on the last Report, fully considered this matter, and he adheres to the opinion he before expressed. He has already commented on the fallacy of instituting comparisons between the vital statistics of the native army composed of men specially selected for their health and physique and the malaria-saturated lower classes of an unhealthy Bengal district, who, enfeebled by disease, are unable to work for their living, and are thus driven to crime. This is the class that forms the bulk of our jail population in Bengal, and when the state of health of these people on admission into jail is considered, it seems no matter for surprise that the death-rate should be too frequently a high one. That this is not due to preventible causes in connection with the jails themselves seems proved by the fact that the mortality is always highest among the recently admitted prisoners. This was referred to in paragraph 23 of the Resolution on the Jail Report of 1882. It is again noticed by Dr. French in his report on the mortality in the Patna Jail during the year under report. As illustrating these remarks, the following table, exhibiting the state of health in which the prisoners who have died during the last five years were admitted into jail, has been prepared. This will show that, during this period, there has been a considerable decrease in the number of deaths among those who were admitted in good health and an increase among those in indifferent and bad health. "The full significance of the term bad health," writes Dr. Lethbridge, "in a malarious district can only be appreciated by those who have had the misfortune to deal medically with these cases. The opinion that it is hopeless to expect much improvement in the death-rate when the whole free population are more or less diseased is not limited to the medical profession, for I am constantly receiving the testimony of district officers and official visitors to this effect. An officer on the eve of retiring from the service goes so far as to recommend seriously that, instead of having jails in unhealthy districts like Julpigoree, Government should establish 'penal hospitals' for diseased criminals." One more fact may be adverted to in support of the same theory. The Inspector-General remarks: "It will be seen that the death-rate among under-trial prisoners in jails was 45·5 per mille, or only 7·9 per mille less than that among convicts. If we consider that the average detention of under-trial prisoners was only 16 82 days, and that they were not subjected to labour or penal discipline, some idea can be formed of the condition in which prisoners are received into our jails from the outside population."

29. The death-rate per mille of all classes of convicts, excluding that from cholera, was 49·2 as against 60·0, 63·1, 63·6, 79·6 in 1882, 1881, 1880, 1879, respectively. The number of cases of intermittent fever has but slightly decreased, and the jails have suffered in common with many districts from the extraordinary prevalence of malarious fever. In the number of admissions and deaths from dysentery and diarrhœa—diseases closely connected in this country with malaria—there was a considerable decrease, the ratio of admissions having fallen from 527·3 to 502·3, and of deaths from 29·2 to 22 per mille as compared with 1882. The deaths from cholera among convicts and under-trial prisoners were 61. The year may, therefore, be considered to have been an unusually favourable one so far as this disease is concerned. Julpigoree was the only jail where it prevailed in a severely epidemic form. Here it attacked 16 prisoners, chiefly new admissions, of whom 13 died. Contrasted with this there were 20 cases in the Bhagulpore and Buxar Jails with only two deaths. The average of deaths from this disease during the past 21 years is 184. During the past four years, in which increased attention has been paid to the jail water-supply, the average of cholera deaths has fallen to 82. Ten jails show death-rates exceeding 75 per mille, the average for convicts in jails being 53·4 per mille. These are—

With regard to the mortality of the prisoners in the Julpigoree Jail, the Superintendent, in his Medical Report for the year, observes: "The chief causes of sickness are shown in the return to have been bowel affections, but in nearly every case these are merely symptomatic of a general diseased condition, the result of prolonged exposure to malaria. It is unnecessary for me to enumerate here the conditions that result from repeated and severe attacks of malarial fever. Suffice it to say that these conditions are met here in the most pronounced form, so much so that I think it is reasonable to suppose that these miserable broken down creatures being unable to provide for themselves in a legitimate fashion degenerated from sheer necessity into the criminal classes. . . . The mortality during the year was excessive, there having been a total of 35 deaths, or a percentage of 29·82. This has been exceeded in former years, and when the deaths from cholera, amounting to 19, or a percentage of 16·18 are excluded, the result is not so surprising considering the class of the prisoners. . . . . There were six deaths with less than a fortnight's residence in jail." At Lohardugga there were 29 deaths of convicts (including one suicide) on an average daily strength of 157·71, 17 of them being from bowel-complaints. Of the total number who died, 18 were received in bad health and 14 died within six months of their sentence. It appears probable that the mortality was in some degree due to the unhealthiness of the temporary sheds in which the prisoners had to sleep while their new barracks were being built. The great increase in mortality at the Rungpore Jail was the subject of a special enquiry and report. The result has been to confirm previous experience, that in a generally diseased condition of the outside population, the jail mortality is practically uncontrollable. In his Report, the Superintendent observes: "The sanitary statistics of the year 1883 show it to have been a very unhealthy one. In 1883 there were 38,058 deaths against 28,311 the year before, or equal to 134·42 per cent. of the mortality of 1882. Towards this result deaths from fever contributed mostly, being 32,643 against 23,878, or an increase of 8,765. If such an actual mortality resulted from this cause, it is probable that the deleterious effect on the health of those who did not actually succumb was proportioned. Such certainly is supported by the general aspect of the great majority of the population, especially those from the district, and equally so by an analysis of the admissions into this jail during the last three months—November, December, and January. In November, out of 58 admissions, 14 only were in good health on arrival at the jail; in December 13 out of 40; in January 13 out of 63. Since my arrival here in the middle of December, I have frequently had occasion to see batches of prisoners on their arrival here from sub-divisions. After having seen jail service in Burmah and the Andamans, besides other parts of India, I have no hesitation in saying that the class of convicts admitted into this jail are in by far the most diseased state I have ever witnessed. On arrival they are commonly in a state of some acute disease, such as dysentery, fever, or diarrhœa, in addition to presenting the characteristic appearance which is common to almost all, viz., enlarged spleen, general emaciation, and advanced anæmia . . . . I never met a class of people so indifferent to their own health or chances of recovery . . . The most important factors of mortality are dysentery, fever, diarrhœa, and consumption. The well-known relation subsisting between malarious fever and dysentery is well illustrated in their cases. In a number of instances, convicts seem to have been through such a long course of these diseases, that the digestive tract attains a condition of disorder which renders the assimilation of any diet imperfect, and in part explains another great difficulty met with in treating such cases. This is their indifference to the action of drugs as ordinarily administered. Such medicines as ipecacuanha, opium, the mineral acids and salts, &c., produce little or no effect in checking the drain either in dysenteric or diarrhœa cases. Of all drugs cinchona febrifuge in rum seems most effectual."

30. A similar diseased condition of the people prevailed in the adjoining district of Bogra, and was undoubtedly the cause of the high rate of mortality shown in that jail At the Nuddea Jail there were 19 deaths in an average daily strength of 160·55 convicts. The district was highly malarious. The death-rate in the Dinagepore Jail, though still high, shows a decrease of 10 per mille compared with the preceding year. This jail is also in a fever district. The sudden change in the general health in the Midnapore Jail was the subject of careful enquiry, but the cause remained undiscovered. A change from well to river water, however, had an immediate and very beneficial effect, though analysis failed to show that the former was not fit for drinking purposes. Of the 82 prisoners who died, 56 had been admitted in bad or indifferent health. Out of 20 deaths at the Patna Jail, six were from cholera, and in all the 14 remaining cases the prisoners were, when admitted, in bad or indifferent health. The unhealthiness of the Dacca Jail was, as in the case of the Lohardugga Jail, due in some measure to the want of proper accommodation. This cause will not be removed till the new buildings now in progress are completed. In addition to this cause, the generally bad condition of health of the prisoners on admission must be taken into account. Dr. Crombie remarks that out of 574 prisoners admitted in August, September, October, and November, no less than 325 were in bad or indifferent health. The death-rate at the Beerbhoom Jail, fell considerably, but was still, owing, it is stated, to the general state of ill-health in the district, very high. The death-rate among prisoners in the jails, taken as a whole, has much diminished, the reduction in that from cholera may perhaps continue, and the completion of the large jail operations may have a beneficial effect on the general health of the jail population. But in face of the experience of the last few years, Mr. Rivers Thompson cannot hope that the mortality among prisoners will be materially reduced until sanitary reform has reached the interior of our districts and there is a permanent improvement in the health of the general population.

31. Dr. Lethbridge, the Inspector-General of Jails, visited every jail in the Province at least once—some more than once—within the year. The Lieutenant-Governor is gratified to learn that the result, with few exceptions, of the inspections, was satisfactory. The Magistrates of Nuddea, Chittagong, Sarun and Durbhunga will be called on to explain the cause of their failure to comply with the orders of Government that they should visit their respective jails weekly. Mr. Rivers Thompson regrets to record that Dr. Lethbridge, whose long experience and untiring devotion to his duties have had a most beneficial influence on the jail administration of these Provinces, has, since the close of the year, been compelled by very serious illness to proceed on furlough to Europe.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to Inspector-General of Jails for information and guidance, and to all Commissioners for information and for communication to the District and Sub-Divisional Officers in their divisions.

Ordered, also, that a copy of this Resolution, and a copy of the Report, be submitted to the Government of India in the Home Department.

Ordered, also, that a copy of this Resolution be pulished in the Calcutta Gazette.

Resolution No. 238T—RA, dated 30th April 1883.

OBSERVATIONS.—The reports received from the Managers of all State Railways in this Province on the transactions of the fine fund for the year 1883-84 show a total of Rs. 3,840 at the credit of the fund on the 31st March 1884, or Rs. 309 in excess of the previous year.

2. On the Northern Bengal State Railway the fund opened with a credit balance of Rs. 758, and the receipts during the year amounted to Rs. 2,418, including the interest of Rs. 37 accrued on the amount deposited in the Provident Institution during 1882-83, making a total of Rs. 3,176. From this amount Rs. 5 were subsequently remitted and Rs. 2,040 were expended for the benefit of the railway servants, thus—Rs. 1,190 in aid of the different schools on the line, Rs. 250 for purchase of books, &c., for the European Institute, Rs. 100 for the same purpose for the Native Improvement Society, and Rs. 500 for warm clothing for well-behaved traffic menials, showing a balance of Rs. 1,131 at the credit of the fund at the end of the year.

3. On the Tirhoot State Railway the balance at credit of the fund at the commencement of the year was Rs. 1,971, to which were added Rs. 519, being the amount of fines realized during the year under review, as well as Rs. 76 on account of interest on the assets of the fund deposited in the Provident Institution during the previous year, bringing up the total assets to Rs. 2,566. The amount spent for the benefit of the employés was Rs. 653 and of fine remitted was Rs. 8, leaving a balance of Rs. 1,905 at the credit of the fund at the close of the year. At the beginning of the year the balance, Rs. 512, of the Patna-Gya Railway Fund was taken over by the Tirhoot State Railway.

4. The fund on the Calcutta and South-Eastern State Railway opened with a balance of Rs. 404, which was increased by Rs. 162 by fines inflicted, and Rs. 15 by interest from the Provident Institution, making a total of Rs. 581. The disbursements were Rs. 136 for subscription to newspapers, leaving a balance of Rs. 445 at the credit of the fund at the end of the year under review.

5. On the Nalhati State Railway the fine account opened with a balance of Rs. 399, which was supplemented during the year by Rs. 29 on account of fines imposed and by Rs. 14, being the amount of interest from the Provident Institution, bringing up the total to Rs. 442. The disbursements were Rs. 83, which was the amount of subscription for newspapers, leaving a balance of Rs. 359 at the credit of the fund on 31st March 1884.

RESOLUTION.—In order to bring the operation of the fine fund of the Bengal State Railways more fully under review, the following analysis of

The amount of fines refunded form about 0·09 per cent. of fines inflicted.

The fines of the Northern Bengal Railway, although by far the heaviest, both in amount and in proportion to the mileage of line worked, have yet been distributed in the most varied and judicious manner for the general benefit of the railway employés.

A little more variety in the distribution of the fund in the case of the Calcutta and South-Eastern and the Nalhati State Railways would be desirable.

The totals at foot will show that the fund has been distributed with great average fairness between the various objects.

The balances on the 31st of March each year, from 1880 to 1884, have been Rs. 8,358, Rs. 7,052, Rs. 2,804, Rs. 3,533, and Rs. 3,841.

All the expenditure is shewn classified under appropriate headings, and the balance in hand at the end of each year can be seen. The various objects, which have appeared to the several Managers to have had claims upon the fund, have been given grants of various amounts, and at different periods, with commendable impartiality. It is to be regretted that the total receipts from fines have not diminished to any appreciable extent, as the amount levied on the employés of a railway as fines may to a certain extent be taken as an index of inefficiency. But admitting the expediency and necessity of this mode of punishment, it is gratifying to observe the purposes to which the amount levied has been applied.

The class of objects to which the Lieutenant-Governor would particularly wish to direct the attention of Managers are—schools likely to be resorted to by the children of employés, whether native or European, the Darjeeling Sanitarium, and the Campbell Hospital, Calcutta, the provision in the libraries of institutes, where they exist, of such books of reference on technical subjects as, though useful to the class of men likely to refer to them, would be otherwise difficult of access, and such other kindred objects as in the discretion of the Managers may appear to be deserving of support and assistance.

Order.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department, and to the Managers of Bengal Provincial Railways for information.

Ordered also that a copy of this Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

CALCUTTA,
The 7th July 1884.

JOHN ELIOT,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL DURING THE WEEK ENDING THE 4TH JULY 1884.

The meteorology of the past week has been comparatively simple in character. It was noticed in last week's report that there was a small atmospheric disturbance at or near the head of the Bay. This was apparently due to the slow advance up the Bay of stronger monsoon winds. These gave rise to equally weather and much rain in front, and drew winds round in South Bengal, and hence diminished very considerably the rainfall throughout the Province. The disturbance hung off the Bengal coast, and although very persistent, it varied to a considerable extent, showing thus some irregularity in the conditions, which prevented that regular rapid growth necessary for the formation of a considerable cyclonic disturbance. It apparently did not develop until the 30th, when a rapid fall of the barometer commenced at Saugor Island, and continued until the afternoon of the 1st. It crossed the Balasore coast on that day, and advanced northwards as far as Central Behar, but gradually filled up with its northward advance. As it progressed landwards, general rain commenced in Southern Bengal and Orissa on the 29th and 30th, and extended over the whole Province on the 1st and 2nd. From the latter date ordinary monsoon winds of strength slightly above the average have prevailed over the Province, and continue to give moderate to heavy rain, chiefly in the interior of the Province or over Behar and North Bengal.

Pressure—Was slightly below the normal at the commencement of the week under review. No change of importance occurred until the 1st July, when a considerable fall of the barometer at Saugor Island and Balasore indicated the approach of the small disturbance to the Balasore coast. It passed inland on the evening of the 1st, and a smaller fall of the barometer to Calcutta, Burdwan, Raneegunge and Hazaribagh, and neighbouring stations on the 2nd, and a slight fall at the Central Behar stations on the 3rd indicated its northward motion into Behar, after which pressure increased rapidly over the Province. A rise of upwards of a tenth of an inch occurred over the whole Province during the 24 hours preceding 10 A.M. of the 4th, on which day pressure was for the first time during the week above the normal. The mean pressure of the week was below the normal pressure of the period by small amounts averaging ·02″ in Orissa, South-West Bengal and Behar, and was normal in East Bengal and Chutia Nagpur.

Temperature.—The variations of temperature depend entirely on the rainfall at present. During the past week fairly general rain was received in every part of the Province, but it was slightly below the average amount of the week. Temperature has on the whole hence been above the average by small amounts. The excess of the mean temperature of the week above the normal, however, exceeded 1° only in South Behar, where it averaged 1·1°. Maximum temperatures exceeding 100° were registered at only two stations—Buxar and Gya. The highest maximum temperatures at these stations were:

Buxar 101·9° on the 28th, and
Gya 100·2° on the 29th.

Winds—Were light and irregular in South-West Bengal and Orissa during the early part of the week in consequence of the small disturbance in the Bay. They, however, blew steadily from south-east and east in North Bengal and Behar, so that the disturbance did not affect the general current up the Gangetic plain. With the passage inland of the disturbance moderately strong south winds were again established on the Bengal coast. Saugor Island, which registered 144 miles of wind at 10 A. M. on the 1st with north-east winds, recorded 432 miles on the 2nd, and 456 miles on the 3rd with south-west winds. A similar, but much less marked, increase occurred at all the stations in Southern Bengal. The corresponding increase was not shewn at the Behar stations until the 3rd and (more especially) the 4th

Rainfall.—The rainfall of the past week was mainly dependent upon the small disturbance. No general rain occurred over the Province until it begun to advance across the coast into the interior. Hence from the 28th of June to the 1st of July the rainfall was small in amount and local in character. Orissa received some heavy showers on the 28th and 29th. Fairly general rain fell in Orissa and the western districts of South-West Bengal on the 30th. The largest amount registered in that area was 2·7 inches at Barrackpore. Moderately heavy rain was received on that day, also in the Cooch Behar district, the station of Cooch Behar receiving 4·3 inches. On the 1st the rainfall extended over the whole of Orissa and Bengal. It was generally moderate in amount except in the area over which the disturbance passed, where some heavy rainfalls were received. Sorah in the Balasore district obtained 4·08 inches, and Balasore 3·6 inches. Rainfall ceased (except as light local showers in Orissa) on the 2nd, but extended to Behar and fell generally in larger amounts than on the 1st. Midnapore received 4·91 inches, the only amount exceeding 4 inches recorded on that day. Rain fell in smaller amounts on the 3rd in South-West Bengal, but continued to be received in moderate amounts over the remainder of Bengal and in Behar. Excluding a fall of 5·27 inches at Cox's Bazar, the amounts received nowhere exceeded three inches. The rainfall was larger in amount, but more local in character on the 4th, and occurred chiefly in the interior, or in Behar and in East and North Bengal. The largest amounts recorded on that day were 4·2 inches at Bhola in the Backergunj district and 3·5 inches at Arrareah in the Purneah district.

The rainfall of the week thus occurred over the whole Province, and in moderate amounts Hence, although it has been uniformly distributed, it has been generally below the average rainfall of the week.

The only districts in which the rainfall was in excess were Backergunge, Purneah, Patna, Bogra, Pooree, Dacca, Chittagong and Noakholly. The excess in the Backergunge district averaged 50 per cent. of the normal amount, and in Purneah 40 per cent. In the other districts it ranged between 10 and 25 per cent.

The rainfall of the week was on the other hand very considerably below the average amount in several districts. Burdwan and Chupra received only one quarter or 25 per cent. of the normal rainfall, Rungpore 30 per cent., Moorshedabad 40 per cent., Patna 50 per cent., Bhagulpore 35 per cent., and Hazaribagh and the 24-Pergunnahs 60 per cent.

Of these districts, the Burdwan, Rungpore, and Hazaribagh districts have received rainfall considerably below the average since the commencement of the monsoon.

In the remaining districts the rainfall varied little from the normal.

The rainfall on the whole was slightly in excess in Orissa and East Bengal and below it in the remaining divisions, as is shown by the following table:—

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 4th July 1884:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park-street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 0·5° greater; and finally, the thermometer, which has furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during the last 20 years and upwards, is found to read 0·6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

N. B.—In the monthly abstract for May last read 5·66 inches instead of 5·74 inches as the total rainfall indicated by Beckley's self-registering raingauge.

General remarks on the fluctuation of principal staples carried over East Indian Railway during four weeks ended 24th May 1884.

INCREASES.

Salt.—This increase is due to improved demand.

Railway Materials, Foreign.—Active development and extension of the State Railway system accounts for this increase.

Seeds.—The net increase in the seeds of all kinds amounted to maunds 2,84,644 and Rs. 60,071:—There was a fair demand for linseed and other oil-seeds, but in rape seed an increase in weight was covered by a decrease in receipts owing to the traffic having been obtained from stations nearer Calcutta than last year.

Other rain and spring crops.—This small increase is attributable to demand in Bengal.

Iron.—Improved demand for railway material and better markets caused the slight increase in this staple.

Opium.—This is attributable to a larger quantity having been despatched to Calcutta than during May 1883.

Saltpetre.—The demand for this staple was fairly good.

Turmeric.—Due to ordinary fluctuation of traffic.

DECREASES.

Wheat.—This heavy decrease was owing to want of demand in English and Continental markets, and large stocks being held, the traffic has not improved since the last report.

Cotton.—The decrease in this staple is attributable to want of stock in the market.

Piece-goods.—This decrease is accounted for by depression of business generally owing to the stringency of the money market in Calcutta.

Coal.—The slight decrease in freight is due to despatches to Foreign Railways having temporarily ceased, and to want of demand for steamers and local consumption in Calcutta.

Jute (Gunny)—This decrease is incidental to the decline in the wheat traffic

Sugar.—Partial failure of last seasons crop accounts for this decrease.

NOTIFICATION.

The 12th June 1884.—The following amended rules for the medical inspection of vessels are issued for the guidance of Port Officers, Pilots and Medical Officers of Ports by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, and they will take effect from the 1st July 1884 in the Port of Chittagong:—

I.—The master of every vessel on board of which there is, either among the passengers or crew, any case of cholera, small-pox, or other epidemic disease common in India, shall report such case or cases to the pilot or other boarding officer at the earliest opportunity; or in the absence of a pilot or other boarding officer, shall hoist a signal, which shall be, during the day, flag R of the Commercial Code at the main, and during the night two lighted lanterns, one over the other, at the fore.

II.—The Port Officer, having received information from the pilot or other boarding officer, or by signal, that any case of such disease is on board, shall communicate the information to the Health Officer of the Port.

III.—The Health Officer, as early as possible after receipt of this information, shall inspect the vessel, and more especially its sanitary condition; shall inquire into the circumstances attending the case or cases of the said disease; and shall arrange for the conveyance of all persons suffering from such disease to a hospital, unless the sick person or his friends can make adequate provision elsewhere.

V.—Where the disease or diseases in question are limited to one or two cases, the vessel shall not be prohibited from taking up the usual place of anchorage in the harbour, nor shall the passengers be detained on board pending the inspection of the Health Officer; but the master of the vessel shall be held responsible that no passenger suspected of having such disease is allowed to depart before this inspection.

VI.—Where cases have been more numerous than one or two, or when, from their occurring on pilgrim or emigrant ships, or for other special reasons, further precautions may be deemed advisable, the vessel shall anchor in the place appointed for the purpose off the outer bar of the Chittagong river, and none of the passengers shall be allowed to leave until the Health Officer has made his inspection.

VII.—Vessels coming under this last rule shall be thoroughly cleansed and fumigated under the directions of the Health Officer. In the case of small-pox it shall also be his duty to vaccinate or have vaccinated all those on board who appear to require this protection and are willing to accept it.

They will, however, be brought into operation under the special orders of Government only when there is any danger of the importation of plague or yellow-fever, or some fatal epidemic not ordinarily prevalent in India:—

IV.—If the Health Officer shall have reason to believe that any such case has occurred, he shall direct the commander to take the vessel to the quarantine anchorage (at Jooldia) duly appointed and notified by Government, there to remain for the space of fifteen days from the day of arrival in the harbour, or from the date of the occurrence of the latest case of illness, and shall further direct the commander to prohibit during the said fifteen days all communication, except such as is hereinafter provided for, between such vessel and the shore, or other vessels or boats in the harbour. The Health Officer may further direct the removal of so many of the passengers and crew as may not be suffering from sickness, and whose services may not be required on board the ship, to such particular spots as may from time to time be fixed upon by the local Government as places of quarantine, there to remain for a space of fifteen days; or in the event of the occurrence of a case of sickness, for a space of fifteen days from the date of the occurrence of the last case.

V.—Any mails or cargo which may be brought by any vessel so arriving shall be landed under such precautions as may be deemed necessary by the Health Officer to prevent the spread of the disease.

VI.—It will be the duty of the Port Officer to facilitate the conveyance to the vessel in quarantine of all supplies of provisions, stores, and other articles required by those on board. These supplies should be placed on the boats of the vessel, to be subsequently removed by members of her crew.

HIGH COURT NOTICE.

Circular order issued by authority of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

(aa.) Vakils practising in the High Court shall note on their vakalatnamas the names of the Mukhtars from whom the vakalatnamas are received.

General letter No. 10, dated Calcutta, the 19th June 1884.

From—C. S. BAYLEY, Esq., Officiating Registrar,
To—All District Judges and the Judicial Commissioner of Chota Nagpore.

I AM directed to forward, for your information and for communication to all Civil Judicial Officers subordinate to you, a copy of a letter, dated the 3rd March last, from the Registrar of the Privy Council, conveying the observations of the Lord President and the Lords of the Judicial Committee regarding the inclusion of unnecessary and redundant matter in the records of cases in which an appeal is preferred to Her Majesty in Council.

2. The Judges direct the special attention of all Civil Judicial Officers to the provisions of Section 141 of the Code of Civil Procedure cited by their Lordships, and desire that the procedure prescribed in that section may be very carefully followed. All documents which, under the provisions of the law, ought not to find a place in the record should invariably be returned immediately on the close of the trial in which they have been produced, and a certificate to the effect that they have been so returned should be appended to the List of Documents filed in the case.

Council Office, Whitehall, the 3rd March 1884.

From—HENRY REEVES, Esq., Registrar, Privy Council,
To—The Registrar of the High Court of Judicature, Calcutta.

I AM directed by the Lord President of the Council and the Lords of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to call the attention of the Hon'ble the Judges of the High Court at Fort William in Bengal to the following observations, with the view of suggesting measures to check the insertion of unnecessary matter in the transcripts or printed copies of the Records in Appeals from the Courts of India to Her Majesty in Council:—

These Records, prepared and for the most part printed in India, are frequently encumbered with numerous documents which have neither been proved nor admitted. The insertion of these documents increases the bulk of the Records and the cost of the proceedings; and it appears to their Lordships that sufficient attention has not been paid to the express provisions of the Legislature for the correction of this abuse. These provisions are as follows:—

Act X of 1877, the Civil Procedure Code, directed (Section 59) that if the plaintiff sues upon a document, it or a copy of it shall be filed with the plaint, and any other documents which are to be relied upon in support of the claim are to be entered in a list to be annexed to the plaint. And (Section 63) a document which ought to be produced when the plaint is presented or entered in the list, and is not, shall not without the leave of the Court be received in evidence at the hearing.

Section 138 and the following sections of that Act provided that—

"138. The parties or their pleaders shall bring with them, and have in readiness at the first hearing of the suit, to be produced when called for by the Court, all the documentary evidence of every description in their possession or power on which they intend to rely, and which has not already been filed in Court, and all documents which the Court at any time before such hearing has ordered to be produced.

"140. The Court shall receive the documents respectively produced by the parties at the first hearing, provided that the documents produced by each party be accompanied by an accurate list thereof prepared in such form as the High Court may from time to time direct.

"The Court may at any stage of the suit reject any document which it considers irrelevant or otherwise inadmissible, recording the grounds of such rejection.

"141. No document shall be placed on the record unless it has been proved or admitted in accordance with the law of evidence for the time being in force. Every document so proved or admitted shall be endorsed with the number and title of the suit, the name of the person producing it, and the date on which it was produced. The Judge shall then endorse with his own hand a statement that it was proved against or admitted by (as the case may be) the person against whom it was used. The document shall then be filed as part of the record." These enactments are repeated in the Code of Civil Procedure, No. XIV of 1882, and have now been in force for some years.

It is plain from these sections that it was not intended that the mere filing of a document should make it part of the Record. But it appears that in many of the cases which have been brought by appeal under the consideration of their Lordships, a less strict practice has prevailed. It seems to have been thought that if an exhibit was not rejected it was to be placed on the Record, and the practice has been to endorse it as filed by the pleader of the party who produced it, and make it part of the record, without considering whether it was proved or admitted. Indeed, every document not objected to seems to have been admitted as of course.

In spite of the more exact provisions of the present Code of Procedure, this practice has not been abandoned, and their Lordships are of opinion that measures should be taken to direct the attention of the Courts of First Instance in India to the 141st Section, and to require the Judges of those Courts (except in the case of an appeal upon the ground of the rejection of a document as irrelevant or otherwise inadmissible) not to allow any document to be placed on the Record unless it has been proved in evidence or admitted, and to attest the fact that it has been so proved or admitted by an endorsement under their own hands.

In appeals to Her Majesty in Council from decisions of High Courts in what were formerly called special appeals, but in the Acts of 1877 and 1882 are called second appeals, in which the questions to be decided are entirely questions of law and not of fact, it is desirable that the Record should be confined, as far as possible, to the legal points under appeal, and should not contain redundant evidence on facts not to be brought under the consideration of their Lordships.

By the section 602 of the Civil Procedure Codes of 1877 and 1882, powers are given to exclude from the Record documents which the officer of the Court considers unnecessary, and which the parties have not specifically asked to be included, and such other documents as the High Court may direct to be excluded.

It appears to their Lordships desirable that these powers should be exercised, when the circumstances of the case under appeal admit of it, especially in the case of documents which have not been used or referred to upon the hearing of an appeal before the High Court.

General Letter No. 11, dated Calcutta, the 28th June 1884.

From—C. S. BAYLEY, ESQ.,

To—All District Judges.

A CASE has recently been reported to the Judges in which a Munsif was permitted by a District Judge, in anticipation of the sanction of the High Court, to return to duty before the expiry of his leave. As the premature return to duty of an officer on leave may not unfrequently cause considerable inconvenience, both to the Court and to the officer officiating for him, I am directed to point out that permission to a member of the Subordinate Judicial Service to return to duty before the expiry of his leave can be given only by the authority which granted the leave. No such permission should therefore be given by District Judges without the orders of the High Court previously obtained.

ANNUAL REPORT ON THE POLICE ADMINISTRATION OF THE TOWN OF CALCUTTA AND ITS SUBURBS FOR THE YEAR 1883.

RESOLUTION.

POLICE.

Calcutta, the 15th July 1884.

READ—

The Annual Report on the Police Administration of the Town of Calcutta and its Suburbs for the year 1883.

Read also—

The Annual Reports of the Chief Presidency Magistrate, and the Presidency Magistrate of the Northern Division, on the Criminal Administration of their Courts for the year 1883.

The Reports for the year 1882, and the orders of Government recorded thereon.

The total number of cases reported during the year 1883 was 4,344 more than in the preceding year. There was a decrease of 535 in the number of cognizable cases, those in the town having diminished by 160, those in the suburbs by 375. On the other hand, the non-cognizable cases largely increased, having risen in the town from 18,716 to 20,871, and in the suburbs from 3,042 to 5,766, an increase of 2,155 and 2,724 respectively. The following statement shows the number of cognizable and non-cognizable cases reported in both town and suburbs during the past five years :—

		1879.	1880.	1881.	1882.	1883.
Cognizable ...	Penal Code ...	5,537	4,644	4,476	5,118	4,546
	Miscellaneous ...	13,112	14,330	15,602	12,962	12,999
Non-cognizable ...	Penal Code ...	7,843	7,688	8,886	9,544	11,523
	Miscellaneous ...	15,141	15,499	16,308	12,214	16,114
	Total ...	41,633	42,161	47,272	39,838	44,182

2. The decrease in the number of cognizable cases is partly attributable to the fact that offences under sections 323 and 334 of the Indian Penal Code of simple hurt became last year non-cognizable. The number of such offences in the town and suburbs, reported in the preceding year, had been 428. The increase in the number of non-cognizable cases was very large, and though partly due to the change in the law just referred to, was chiefly caused by a stricter enforcement of municipal laws. In the town there was an increase in the number of cognizable serious offences against the person from 237 to 294 ; of miscellaneous cognizable cases from 10,986 to 11,408 ; in non-cognizable cases an increase in miscellaneous offences from 16,194 to 18,490, due chiefly to the large number of prosecutions for public and local nuisances. There was a decrease, on the other hand, in the number of cognizable serious offences against person and property from 165 to 142 ; of minor offences against the person from 358 to 52 ; of minor offences against property from 2,962 to 2,663 ; and in non-cognizable cases a decrease in minor offences against the person from 1,919 to 1,893, and in minor offences against property from 384 to 281. In the suburbs there was in cognizable cases an increase of serious offences against the person from 47 to 115 ; of serious offences against person and property from 55 to 85 ; and a decrease from 2,339 to 1,918, chiefly in street offences, among miscellaneous cases. In non-cognizable cases the institutions rose from 3,042 to 5,766 ; those under the Conservancy Acts alone increasing from 836 to 3,117. On the whole, the crime statements for the year may be considered satisfactory. The decrease in the class of serious offences against person and property, and in minor offences against property in the town, and the increase of prosecutions for nuisances, indicate a more active police administration.

3. During the year under review 47,987 persons were arrested for all classes of offences, the number being 7,517 more than in 1882. This increase was the result of more frequent prosecutions in the town for public nuisances and street offences, and in the town and suburbs for conservancy offences. In cognizable offences under the Penal Code, however, in both town and suburbs, arrests and convictions somewhat decreased. The percentage of convictions was, in cognizable offences under the Penal Code, 56, in miscellaneous cognizable offences

91·08, in Penal Code non-cognizable offences 79·88, in miscellaneous non-cognizable offences 87·45. There were 40,363 persons convicted of all kinds of offences, out of 47,987 arrested. Thus in 84·11 out of every 100 arrests the action of the police was justified by the result of the trials. In all cognizable crime there were convicted in the town 1,031 Hindus, 690 Mussulmans, 151 Christians, and three Jains, and in the suburbs 276 Hindus, 265 Mussulmans, and three Christians. Both in the town and the suburbs the Mussulmans committed, as in previous years, more serious crimes in proportion to their number than any other class of the population. As usual there was no crime among the Brahmos and Sikhs.

4. The percentage of false to true cases shows a satisfactory decrease from 2·07 in 1882 to 1·35 in 1883. The following statement gives the return of cases reported during the years 1882 and 1883, and the number of cases shown as false :—

	Town.	Suburbs.	Percentage of false crime to true crime.
1882.
Cases reported	33,477	6,361	2·07
False cases	763	43
1883.
Cases reported	35,472	8,710	1·35
False cases	510	87

The total net decrease in false cases was thus 229, there being a decrease of 273 in the town and an increase of 44 in the suburbs. Of the total number of prosecutions for laying false charges in the town and suburbs, the complainants were imprisoned in four cases, in 80 they were fined, in 73 compensation was awarded to the persons falsely accused, in 24 the complainants were discharged. In 294 cases the charges were not laid against any person by name, and there was no evidence on which a prosecution could be based. In the remaining cases the charge was merely false through mistake of law or fact. In the Resolution on the Report on the Police Administration of Calcutta and its Suburbs for the year 1882, it was impressed on the Presidency Magistrates that nothing tends to discourage the institution of maliciously false cases so much as the knowledge that they who bring them will be criminally prosecuted. The efficiency of this procedure has been clearly shown by the experience of the past year; though the number of prosecutions under the Indian Penal Code for false evidence and false complaints of all kinds was still under 7 per cent. of the total number of false cases reported.

5. The following table shows the value of the property stolen and recovered during the past three years:—

		Value of property stolen.	Value of property recovered.	Percentage of value of property recovered.
		Rs.	Rs.
1881	Town	1,26,045	78,800	62·51
	Suburbs	11,582	8,654	74·71
	Total ...	1,37,627	87,454	63·54
1882	Town	97,900	58,307	59·55
	Suburbs	13,936	5,682	40·77
	Total .	1,11,836	63,989	57 21
1883	Town	1,38,739	76,714	55·29
	Suburbs	23,736	7,351	30·96
	Total ...	1,62,475	84,065	51 74

Although the number of cases in which property was stolen was 128 less, the value of the property stolen was Rs. 50,639 more than in the preceding year. In the suburbs, in a single burglary case, Rs. 7,000 were stolen and not recovered; and the percentage of recoveries in the suburbs was, in consequence, considerably lowered.

6. The number of true cognizable cases in the town slightly increased, as compared with the number in 1882, but was considerably smaller than that in 1881, the figures being 16,882 for 1881, 13,978 for 1882, and 14,091 for 1883. There was a decrease of four cases in offences against the State, of 18 in serious offences against person and property, of 289 in minor offences against the person, and of 94 in minor offences against person and property. There was an increase of 79 in serious offences against the person, of 410 in other offences, and of 29 in offences against special and local laws. The increase from 190 to 269 in serious offences against the person is explained by the Commissioner of Police to be chiefly due to the police taking cognizance, under section 324, Indian Penal Code, as cases of causing hurt by dangerous weapons, of offences which would formerly have been shown as cognizable cases, of simple hurt under section 323, or of hurt on grave and sudden provocation under section 334; and there has accordingly been a diminution, partly accounted for by this procedure of the police, in the number of cases under sections 323 and 334, Indian Penal Code, from 280 to 116. It is possible that in this respect the strict letter of the law may sometimes be evaded. But, as Mr. Harrison remarks, the police must interfere and take cognizance, in a place like Calcutta, of cases in which persons are injured by blows of sticks and latties, and unless they do so under section 324, they cannot do so at all if the assault or injury is not actually committed in their presence. So long, therefore, as the police limit their action under this section to cases of this description, it does not seem to be open to objection. One of the causes of the increase in cognizable cases was increased activity in enforcing the provisions of the Stage Carriage Act, the offences under this head showing a rise from 650 to 1,056. The increase in miscellaneous street offences was 1,142. There was a decrease from 479 to 53 of offences under the Police Act, the cause of which is not explained. The Contagious Diseases Act having been repealed during the year, only 76 cases are shown compared with 369 in 1882. Offences under the head of Cruelty to animals fell from 2,928 to 2,493, a decrease of 435, though the numbers under this head in the suburbs show an increase. There were seven cases of offences relating to coin and stamps more than in 1882, the figures being 15 in 1883, 8 in 1882, and 17 in 1881. Of these 15, three related to stamps and 12 to coin. The report does not state whether the coin offences were on a large scale or merely petty.

7. There were six murders in the town against seven in 1882; the attempts at murder were two as in that year; and culpable homicides increased from three to four. Two of the six were cases of murder of women by their paramours, the child of one of the women being also killed; one of a newborn child; one of a gunny-bag dealer in the course of a robbery; one of a paramour by a jealous husband; and one of a prostitute for her jewels. One of the accused was sentenced to transportation for life, one committed suicide, and the remainder were discharged on the evidence. In the attempts at murder both accused were sentenced to ten years' rigorous imprisonment. In three of the four cases of culpable homicide, the accused were convicted; in the fourth the accused absconded and evaded arrest. The cases of grievous hurt are shown as having risen in number from 22 in 1882 to 45. In one of these cases a cooly under arrest struck the constable in whose custody he was with a dao on the head; in another a prostitute was wounded by her paramour; and in the third a Hindoo was attacked by some milkmen for remonstrating with them against the practice of phooka, or the injection of salt into cows, referred to in paragraph 2 of the Resolution on the Report for 1881. There was, as in the preceding year, only one case of administering stupefying drugs, in which the accused, an up-country Hindoo, was charged with administering opium in some sweetmeats to a carter, and was, on conviction by the High Court, sentenced to five years' rigorous inprisonment. It seems probable, from the large and unexplained increase in the returns of offences of grievous hurt, that the police may have taken cognizance as such of some cases which would, before the change in the law, have been considered simple hurt, in the same way as they have taken cognizance of the latter cases under section 324, Indian Penal Code. If so, their procedure should be checked. In 20 convictions there were 11 sentences of from one week to two months, and three sentences of fine, and the injuries were not probably very serious. Kidnapping or abduction cases were 15 against 18 in 1882, and convictions were obtained in three of them. None of these cases call for any particular notice. There were 14 cases in which death or grievous hurt resulted from the doing of rash acts against 10 in 1882. Ten resulted in death and four in grievous hurt. One tram-car driver was sentenced to three months' and one to 18 months' rigorous imprisonment, and six other servants of the Tramway Company were fined for rash driving. It is satisfactory to notice that in all cases of this kind active measures are taken against the offenders.

8. Offences of burglary and lurking house-trespass in the town decreased from 149 in 1882 to 130, of which 46 per cent. were detected. The percentage of detections was the same as last year. The value of property stolen amounted to Rs. 17,122, an amount greater than has been stolen in any one of the last ten years, but the percentage of recoveries was slightly better than in the preceding year. The true cases of theft fell from 1,839 in 1882 to 1,712; but the value of the property stolen rose from Rs 89,481 to Rs. 1,21,411. Of this amount only Rs. 65,928 were recovered: 282 of the thefts were of property above Rs. 50 in value, amounting to a total value of Rs. 1,07,800. The large proportion of thefts committed by servants was noticed in the Report and Resolution last year. During 1883, 403 thefts were attributed to servants, and the amount stolen by them at 48·03 per cent. of the total value stolen. The Commissioner of Police remarks: "When it is brought to notice the careless way native servants are taken on by their masters without knowing anything of their previous history or even place of residence, the carelessness of the masters themselves, and consequently the great temptation to steal that is thrown in their way, it will be seen how difficult it is for the police to successfully trace out cases of this nature." A remarkable instance of this carelessness occurred during the year under review. A native gentleman, on going hurriedly from his town to his country residence, left his cash-box, containing notes and valuables to the amount of Rs. 24,000 on the floor of his sitting-room. The door was merely fastened by a common lock. Next morning the box was found lying forced open in a passage leading to the back stairs of the premises. There is little doubt that some of the servants in the house were the culprits, and hopes are still entertained of a discovery of the thieves.

Another case deserves notice as connected with thefts from European vessels lying in the river—

"During the beginning of the third quarter, watches, gold chains, gold spectacles, and sundry other articles were being stolen from different vessels in a singular manner. At first the police were completely baffled, but one day Inspector Forsyth of the River Police heard of a respectable man having been on board a certain ship in the river with two ladies looking out for a passage, and from certain conversation that ensued, he suspected that this man was probably the one who had committed all these thefts. He was searched for and found to be Ellis, then living at No. 10, Weston's Lane, in charge of the Temperance Club. He was recognised as the man who had pledged certain articles of jewellery that had been stolen from the ships in port, and further enquiries enabled the police to trace nearly all the stolen property, and obtain evidence of his being the actual thief. Ellis was convicted and sentenced to two years and six months' rigorous imprisonment. He was a very fairly educated man, and a good musician, and had evidently seen better days."

9. The cognizable crime in the suburbs decreased from 3,276 to 2,857 cases. There was a remarkable increase in serious offences against the person, the number of which rose from 44 to 115, an increase of 71. The attempts at, and abetments of, suicide rose from 3 to 16; cases by hurt of dangerous weapons from 1 to 12; of grievous hurt from 12 to 38; offences under sections 353 and 354, Indian Penal Code, from 12 to 29. The explanation of the increase in cases of hurt by dangerous weapons is probably the same as that for the similar increase in the town; but there is no explanation of the increase under the other heads. Serious offences against person and property also largely increased, the numbers being 49 for 1882 and 81 for 1883. The increase in house-breaking alone was 32, the total number being 80. The average number of true offences of lurking house-trespass and house-breaking in the suburbs during the prst five years has been 81; and the number of these offences during 1883 was three above the average. This average, however, is much raised by the large number (109) of such offences committed in 1879: 77 per cent. of the cases are reported to have been very petty, a mere hole having been made in a mud or mat wall, and in only 37 of the 80 burglaries was property stolen. The value of the property stolen, however, amounted to Rs. 11,463; of which Rs. 7,000 were stolen from the regimental bania in the Ballygunge Cavalry Lines and nothing has as yet been recovered, though there appears a good chance of the crime being brought home to the perpetrators. Of the total amount stolen, only Rs. 1,458 worth were recovered. The number of thefts was 450, or 20 more than in 1882. The amount stolen was, however, Rs. 12,273, or slightly less than in the year preceding. The amount recovered rose from Rs. 4,719 to Rs. 5,893. The decrease in the total number of cognizable offences in the suburbs is chiefly accounted for by a decrease of 54 in cognizable offences under excise laws and of 417 in miscellaneous street offences.

10. The number of non-cognizable offences in the town shows a large increase from 18,716 in 1882 to 20,871 in 1883. Of these, 9,313 were under the Penal Code and 11,558 under local Acts. There was a decrease in minor offences against the person and against property. Cases of public and local nuisances were 1,805 more than in the year preceding. Three hundred and eighty-seven cases are shown of offences under Chapters VIII, XXXVI, XLII, and XLVI of the Criminal Procedure Code, against none in 1882. This statement is not intelligible. Chapter VIII of the Criminal Procedure Code provides for taking security to keep the peace and be of good behaviour; Chapter XXXVI provides for the maintenance of wives and children, but Chapter XLII merely contains provisions regarding bonds, and Chapter XLVI is miscellaneous. Town cases under the first two chapters named have not been shown in the returns of previous years, and the increase of 387 cases in 1883 is therefore only nominal. For the future, cases arising under Chapters VIII (of security for keeping the peace and for good behaviour) X and XI (public nuisances), XII (disputes as to immoveable property), XXXV (proceedings in cases of certain offences affecting the administration of justice), and XXXVI (maintenance) of the Criminal Procedure Code should be entered under this head.

11. The non-cognizable crime in the suburbs increased from 3,042 in 1882 to 5,766. Part of this increase was due to the change in the law, which rendered hurt cases non-cognizable; but the chief cause was a large increase in the number of prosecutions under the conservancy laws, which numbered 3,117 against 836 in the preceding year.

12. There were 60 suicides in the year under review, as compared with 45 in 1882. The average of the five preceding years was 56. In 25 of these cases the suicide was by hanging; in 15 by opium. The number of inquests held by the Coroner was 200. Accidental deaths decreased from 283 to 269, and of these 105 were by drowning, 58 by falls from trees and buildings, eight by snake-bite, 13 by carriage and horse accidents, 85 by other causes. Deaths by carriage and horse accidents were six less than in the preceding year. Two steamers, 16 cargo-boats, two passenger boats, and one private boat collided with the Hooghly Bridge, and of these nine sunk. No lives were lost.

13. The following table shows the quantity of arms and ammunition imported through the port of Calcutta in the past seven years:—

Years.	Sporting rifles.	Double and single-barrel sporting guns.	Pistols and revolvers.	Gunpowder.	Percussion caps.
	No.	No.	No.	lbs.	No.
1877	186	716	438	84,560	28,586,700
1878	174	365	306	80,000	11,234,000
1879	23	69	341	88,050	10,660,500
1880	116	135	356	43,260	14,881,000
1881	60	180	252	81,694	19,320,000
1882	201	196	259	84,099	20,565,250
1883	248	254	177	64,675	15,917,036

As it has been decided by the Government of India that birdshot is not ammunition within the meaning of the Act, it has been omitted from the returns and statements for the year. The total number of fire-arms sold in Calcutta was 985. The bulk of the trade is said to be in the hands of five or six firms. There were only two prosecutions under the Act during the year, both petty.

14. Six vagrants were in the Workhouse at the end of 1882, and 46 were admitted during the year under report. Of the 52 vagrants, 26 were discharged on finding employment, 8 were released who failed to procure work, 2 were deported, 1 imprisoned, 1 transferred to the lunatic asylum, and 14 remained in the Workhouse at the end of the year. Rupees 2,871 were spent in the maintenance of the vagrants at the Workhouse, and Rs. 378 in deporting vagrants from India.

15. Act V (B.C.) of 1879 was repealed during the year by the new Licensed Warehouse and Fire-Brigade Act IV of 1883. The chief changes were in the extension of the provisions to the Municipality of Howrah, and in the application of funds. Twenty per cent. of the fees and penalties received must, under the new Act, be applied by the Municipal Commissioners to the cost of inspection, and the remaining 80 per cent to the cost of the Fire-brigade. The number of fires attended by the Brigade in 1883 was 26. Of these seven were in the town and 19 in the suburbs. In 1882 the number of fires was 36. The value of the property destroyed was Rs. 1,29,069 against an ascertained value of Rs. 16,87,523 destroyed in 1882. It is satisfactory to notice that there were no extensive jute fires in 1883, nor was any fire attended with loss of life. Damage estimated at a lakh of rupees was caused by a fire in Section G, Burra Bazar, in the town of Calcutta, during October last. Seventy kutcha buildings used as store-houses and timber-yards, containing large quantities of tar, rope, kerosine oil and timber were burnt. The fire is believed to have originated in some sparks which fell from a blacksmith's shop on to some tar. A new steam fire-engine was procured from England during the year, and is reported to have worked well.

16. The strength of the police was the same as in the preceding year, with the exception that 21 additional native officers were employed for regulating traffic on the Strand. In the town the total cost was Rs. 4,16,065, against Rs. 4,23,896 in 1882. Of this, Rs. 2,69,453 was paid by the Municipality, Rs. 89,818 was the Government contribution, and Rs. 56,794 were realized in fees and fines. In the suburbs the cost of the police was Rs. 1,48,558, against Rs. 1,53,743 in 1882.

The cost of the River Police was Rs. 30,122, of the Government guards Rs. 46,685, of the Fort Police Rs. 4,451, of the lock-up guards Rs 3,784, of the salt pass-station Rs. 3,006, of the (now abolished) Preventive Service Rs. 1,846, of additional constables Rs. 30,080.

17. The number of up-country men employed at the police-stations in the town and suburbs was 1,866, of whom 91 were native officers. Of 230 Bengalis employed, 148 were constables and 82 native officers. In 1882 the strength of the Bengalis was 278, of whom 85 were native officers and 193 constables. It is stated that, owing to the discipline enforced in the service, coupled with the fatigue and exposure of the duty required, Bengali recruits will not come forward for enlistment.

18. The number of cases instituted during the year in the Court of the Chief Presidency Magistrate was 12,124, as against 10,385 in the preceding year. The number of persons concerned rose from 12,976 in 1882 to 15,814, and of these 14,710 were convicted, 1,039 acquitted or discharged, 29 committed to take their trial at the Sessions of the High Court, and the remainder were under trial, transferred, or died. The total number of cognizable cases instituted was 7,100 against 6,879 in 1882; serious offences against the person and property decreased from 42 to 29; and there was a decrease in minor offences against the person and against property, with a slight increase in other classes of crime. Five thousand and twenty-four non-cognizable cases were instituted against 3,506 in the preceding year, the increase being chiefly among public and local nuisance offences. The cognizable cases instituted before the Magistrate of the Northern Division amounted to 4,867 against 4,737 in the preceding year, and among these there were convictions in 4,431. The non-cognizable cases in that Court were 3,883 in number against 3,347 in 1882. There was an increase of 457 cases under the head of public and local nuisances, which chiefly accounts for the total increase. The number of cases instituted before the Bench of Presidency Magistrates during the year was 12,064, 10,841 of which were under the Conservancy Act. The Chief Presidency Magistrate states that, as in the year preceding, he had to notice irregular attendance, and in some instances absence altogether without notice on the part of some of the Honorary Magistrates. He has pointed out these irregularities, but he admits that, as most of the Honorary Magistrates have business of their own to attend to, these absences cannot always be avoided. The Lieutenant-Governor fully appreciates the assistance rendered by the Honorary Benches in the administration of justice in Calcutta and the Suburbs, and he is glad to find that on the whole their working has been most satisfactory.

19. The Lieutenant-Governor has again to acknowledge the ability with which Mr. Harrison has performed his duty as Commissioner of Police during a year of exceptional difficulties. Mr. Wilkins, the Officiating Deputy Commissioner, in whose hands rested the direct control of the force, has worked with his usual intelligence and efficiency. The police force of Calcutta, as a whole, has worked zealously and well throughout the year. Its duties have been much heavier than in ordinary years, owing to the extra work entailed on it by the Exhibition and the unusual crowds of visitors. Mr. Rivers Thompson has noticed with pleasure the large number of officers, both European and Native, who have been specially commended for good services.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, for information, and for communication to the Presidency Magistrates.

Ordered also that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division for information.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

F. B. PEACOCK,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

ALTERATION OF CLAUSE 6 OF THE "NOTICE TO PILGRIMS ATTACHED TO PILGRIM PASSPORTS

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

No. $\frac{5}{175-91}$.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Home Department,— (Sanitary) under date Simla, 3rd July 1884.

Home Department Resolution No. $\frac{4}{198-214}$, dated 12th July 1882.
Telegram from the Secretary of State, dated 20th February 1884.
Telegram to the Secretary of State, dated 22nd February 1884.
Despatch from the Secretary of State, No. 57 (Statistics and Commerce), dated 24th April 1884.

RESOLUTION.

IT having been brought to the notice of the Government of India that Clause 6 of the "Notice to Pilgrims," attached to the passport issued under the Resolution cited in the preamble, is liable to be understood as implying that the pilgrim holding the passport is entitled to pecuniary assistance from the British Consul at Jeddah, His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct that the clause be altered as follows:—

"This passport is granted solely for the convenience of the pilgrim. The holder thereof should apply to the British Consul at Jeddah for advice in case of difficulty."

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the above Resolution be forwarded to all Local Governments and Administrations, and to the several Departments of the Government of India, for information and guidance. Also that it be published in the Gazette of India and in all Local Gazettes for general information. Local Governments should arrange for its translation and publication in the Vernacular Gazettes, and amend the passports issued accordingly.

A. MACKENZIE,
Secretary to the Government of India.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

ALL persons proposing to make a pilgrimage to Mecca are hereby warned that they will be required by the Turkish Government to perform quarantine for at least 10 days on the Island of Camaran before being allowed to go on to Jeddah, during which period the pilgrims will have to provide for all their expenses. They should, therefore, make certain, in taking their passages, that the steamer starts so as to arrive at Jeddah in time for the Haj, after making due allowance for the detention at Camaran. During the quarantine at Camaran the Turkish Government require the pilgrims to pay certain fees besides arranging for their own provisions, and ships which have evaded quarantine are not allowed to land their pilgrims at Jeddah.

Pilgrims are, therefore, warned that before starting they should see that they have sufficient funds for the expenses of quarantine and of the Haj, and for their journey back to India. The Mahomedan Vice-Consul at Jeddah, Abdur Ruzzak, suggests that each pilgrim should have at least Rs. 300 with him when he leaves India after having paid his passage to Jeddah. No pecuniary assistance can be obtained from the British authorities at Jeddah.

Intending pilgrims should apply to the Protector of Pilgrims, Bombay, and to the Port Officer at other ports for information as to the latest safe date for sailing.

BENGAL SCHOLARS.

Veterinary Prizes.

IN reference to your letter of the 28th March 1884 approving certain recommendations as to the conditions of award of these prizes, I have now the honour to enclose three copies of the detailed Regulations which I have issued, embodying the said recommendations in a practical form, and which I trust will be found to meet all requirements.

These Regulations and my instructions to the Examiners will insure that the objects of the Bengal Government will be safeguarded, and I trust amply secured.

You will probably receive through Mr. Fitzgerald, of the India Office, a notice of the success of Giris Chandra Bose this month in obtaining the First Prize, with the Report of the Examiner.

It was not possible in this first competition, owing to the recent institution of the prizes, to give notice of or to require the fulfilment of all the conditions of the now settled Regulations, but an equal standard was insisted on, and the sole candidate, the said G. C. Bose, gave so great satisfaction to the Special Examiner (Professor Brown, Consulting Veterinary Surgeon to the Privy Council), that he was recommended to me, and approved by me for the first prize of £50.

I have, &c.,

J. B. MCCLELLAN.

FIRST PRIZE, £50. SECOND PRIZE, £20.

THE competition is confined to the Bengal scholarship holders at the Royal Agricultural College.

2. Subject to the other provisions of these Regulations, the First Prize will be annually awarded to that Bengal scholar who, upon the completion of his seventh session, and having passed all his classes, stands at the head of the list in a special final veterinary examination, provided that both in the said examination and also in the final examination for the diploma and on an average in the three ordinary preliminary examinations he has obtained at the least three-fourths of maximum marks in the subject of Veterinary Science and Practice.

3. The Second Prize will be annually awarded to that Bengal scholar of the same standing, not being the successful competitor for the First Prize, who has similarly obtained in the aforesaid examinations at the least two-thirds of maximum marks, and who, if there be two or more qualified competitors, has obtained the highest total number of marks.

4. The special final examination will be subject to the approval of the Principal, and will be conducted by such Examiners, external or otherwise, as may on each occasion be determined by the Principal. It will be partly by printed questions, and partly vivâ voce, and will embrace the whole course of Veterinary Science and Practice prescribed in the Royal Agricultural College Syllabus, with other details and investigations at the discretion of the Examiners, having regard to the express object of the institution of the prizes.

5. The First Prize will not be awarded if, as regards Veterinary Science and Practice, the first competitor be not at the head of the list of all the candidates whatsoever for the diploma, who take up that subject for their special subject.

6. The general grounds of disqualification for College Prizes will be grounds of disqualification for these Prizes also.

7. Candidates intending to compete for the Prizes are requested to give in their names to the Principal at least two months before the commencement of the ordinary final examination.

PROGRESS REPORTS OF THE NATIVE SCHOLARS AT THE ROYAL AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE AT CIRENCESTER.

THE following correspondence is published for general information.

COLMAN MACAULAY,
Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

No. 577—45-9, dated. Simla, the 3rd July 1884.

Endorsed by the Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Revenue and Agricultural Department.

COPY forwarded to the Government of Bengal, for information, in continuation of the endorsement from this Department No. 127 of the 27th February last.

No. 42, dated India Office, London, the 29th May 1884.

From—Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India,
To—His Excellency the Most Hon'ble the Governor-General of India in Council.

IN continuation of my despatch of the 24th January last, No. 3, I forward the reports for the last two sessions upon the progress and conduct of the native scholars at the Royal Agricultural College at Cirencester, and copy of a letter from the Principal, stating that Babu Grish Chandra Bosu has concluded a very satisfactory course by obtaining the second place in the final examination for the College diploma, besides gaining the highest honors of the Royal Agricultural Society of England and the Fellowship of the Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland, thus carrying away all the principal agricultural diplomas of Great Britain. The letter also explains the circumstances which induced me to despatch to your Excellency the telegram noted in the margin, in support of the recommendation of the Principal, that Babu K. Chakravarti should be granted an extension of his scholarship.

Dated 25th April 1884.

Dated Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, the 19th April 1884.

From—JOHN B. MCCLELLAN, ESQ., Principal,
To—G. W. FITZGERALD, ESQ.

I ENCLOSE the abstracts of accounts and certificates of the Indian scholars, with receipts and "reports" as usual,—the last for two sessions.

I also send a special report about Bose's successes and Chakravarti's illness.

Unless the latter can get his scholarship extended, he may not find himself able to return to College to obtain his diploma, which would be a great misfortune.

Serious illness is a contingency to be in some way or other provided for.

Chakravarti's illness is rheumatic gout, and rheumatic fever with it. His eyes have suffered severely. Bose will see you and tell you more. He will, I fear, have a heavy doctor's bill.

Dated Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, the 10th April 1884.

From—JOHN B. MCCLELLAN, ESQ. Principal,
To—The Under Secretary of State for India.

Bengal Scholars.

G. C. BOSE (BASU).

B. K. CHAKRAVARTI.

Special Report.

I BEG specially to bring under your notice, for favourable consideration, the names of the above scholars, who have now completed the allotted time of 2½ years at the College.

Mr. Bose has obtained the second place in the final examination for the diploma (as shown on the accompanying class list).

He also obtained the first place in the examination for the senior prizes of the Royal Agricultural Society of England held in London last May, and the Life Membership of the Society. Similarly, he obtained the diploma of Fellowship of the Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland by competitive examination last year.

He, thus, carries away all the principal agricultural diplomas of Great Britain.

Mr. Chakravarti, who in usual course would this term have sat (and no doubt successfully) for the final examination for the diploma of this College with Mr. Bose, has unfortunately been totally incapacitated for work during the whole session by an attack of rheumatic gout.

His recovery is very slow, but it is hoped that he may be able, if the Bengal Government will agree, and will extend his scholarship for one more session, to return to his studies next session and enter for the final examination.

As it will be a serious loss to him to have to return to India without the diploma, I beg to recommend him to the favourable consideration of the Government for the above permission and assistance.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL SUMMARY OF THE PROVINCE OF BENGAL FOR THE MONTH OF JUNE 1884.

THE month of June is meteorologically one of the most important during the year in Northern India. During the three previous months local sea winds prevail in the Bengal coast and penetrate further and further into the interior with the advance of the season. They, however, hardly affect the weather in the greater part of Behar and Chutia Nagpur, over which dry westerly winds prevail until the end of May or beginning of June.

During the month of May a very important change occurs over the Bay of Bengal. Previous to the change, winds are generally light and variable, except in the neighbourhood of the coast where the land and sea breezes are felt. The change commences at the south of the Bay with the advance of the south-west humid winds which are accompanied with rain-squalls. Sometimes they advance some distance north and give rise to a small storm, as, for example, last month in the case of the Akyab cyclone, and then retreat for a short time. But usually before the end of the last week of the month of May, or the first week of June, humid southerly winds have advanced up to the head of the Bay, and absorbed, as it were, the local southerly sea breezes at the head of the Bay. The sea winds which prevail after this fusion over the Province are of much greater weight and body, and extend rapidly beyond the limits of the Province westwards. These changes initiate the south-west monsoon proper in Northern India.

After this large change has been effected, there is always a tendency for the monsoon winds to weaken at the northern limits of this lower air circulation in Northern India. Winds then fall off and become light and variable in Bengal. This is during the months of June, July, August, and September, followed by the repetition on a small scale of the original action which established the south-west monsoon proper. The winds strengthen in the south, and the strong winds advance northwards. They always give rise to heavy rain in the front of the strong current, and frequently to small cyclonic disturbances, which pass landwards. Every advance of these strong winds is followed by another burst of rainfall in Northern India, when the winds again weaken and the same actions are repeated.

The preceding remarks illustrate the following statement taken from the monthly report for June 1883:—"It is an important fact that the rainfall of the south-west monsoon is not due to steady action. It occurs rather as the result of a series of pulsations or water of aqueous vapour passing into the Province and condensed. The intervals between the bursts of heavy rainfall are very favourable to the formation of cyclonic vortices at the head of the Bay, which advance landwards across the Bengal or Orissa coast, and give heavy or occasionally excessive local rainfall to the districts over which they pass. Hence the important meteorological features of the month are the commencement of the south-west monsoon, the occurrence of cyclonic storms and the distribution of rainfall"

It may also be noted that the rainfall of the Province during the month of June is due almost entirely to the Bay of Bengal branch of the monsoon current, uninfluenced by the Bombay branch. The distribution of the rainfall is hence generally similar to that of the preceding month, decreasing rapidly from east to west across the Province.

Establishment of the monsoon.—The first strong advance of south-west winds up the Bay occurred in May, and gave rise to the Akyab cyclone. They did not reach the Bengal coast. The second advance occurred during the last week of May, and began to influence the weather in Bengal from the 31st. This date may hence be accepted for the establishment of the monsoon on the Bengal coast. General rain fell over the greater part of Bengal on that day, and extended to Behar on the 3rd. It thus commenced earlier than usual, but was by no means strong, and gave moderate rain during the month. The rainfall, however, occurred at frequent intervals, and was generally well distributed.

Barometric depressions.—Two were formed near the head of the Bay during the month and passed landwards. The first formed after an advance of strong south-westerly winds up the Bay. They were felt on the Ceylon coast on the 13th, 14th and 15th. The wind observations at the Bengal and Orissa stations on the 17th indicated that a depression and cyclonic circulation was forming near the head of the Bay. It increased in intensity during the next two days. The centre at 10 A.M. of the 19th was nearly midway between Saugor Island and False Point. It drifted slowly westwards during the day and crossed the Balasore coast early on the morning of the 20th. It continued to move in the same direction and crossed the North Orissa hills, but was so much enfeebled that it broke up very shortly after in the Central Provinces. Its advance landwards was followed by the establishment of strong monsoon winds for some days over the whole Province as well as the Bay, which gave general rain until the 23rd. A second depression then began to form at or near the head of the Bay. The wind directions at stations on the north coast shifted round on the 24th, and thus indicated its existence. It was a very small disturbance, and the actions causing it were apparently not only weak, but irregular. It did not show any considerable development until the 30th, when a moderately large fall of the barometer occurred in South Bengal and Orissa. It was, as evidenced by the land observations, moving westwards on that day. It crossed the Balasore coast on the morning of the 1st and disappeared very shortly afterwards.

The depressions during the month of June were hence much smaller and less intense than those during the corresponding month of last year.

Temperature.—The mean temperature of the month of May was generally below the average in consequence of the large number of storms that occurred. The early commencement of the monsoon, and the general character of the weather, viz. clouded skies with frequent moderate showers, has caused the temperature of the past month to be also generally below the average. The only districts in which high temperatures were registered during a considerable portion of the month were the Shahabad and Gya districts of South Behar and Chutia Nagpur, where the rainfall was markedly below the average. The mean temperature of the month was 2° below the normal over the whole of Bengal and Behar. It was ½° below it in Orissa and ½° above it in Chutia Nagpur.

Rainfall of the month.—The average rainfall of the month exceeds five inches in the case of all stations except Buxar, of which it is only 4·7 inches. It varies between 5 and 10 inches for all stations (excluding Buxar) lying to the west of a curved line running through Rajmehal, Berhampore, Beerbhoom, Calcutta and Contai, and decreases from east to west. Between that line and a line running through Rungpore, Mymensingh and Kishoregunj, along the western flank of the Tipperah hills and through Chandpore and Patuakhally, the average rainfall increases eastwards from 10 to 20 inches.

To the east of the latter line it exceeds 20 inches, and over the greater part of the Cooch Behar district, the Bhootan Duars, the Darjeeling hill districts, and the Cox's Bazar district and South Chittagong it slightly exceeds 30 inches.

If the commencement of the south-west monsoon rains date from the first occurrence of general rain after the permanent establishment of south-west winds over the whole of the Bay, the following appear to be the dates for the different divisions of the Province:—

East Bengal	...	...	...	...	May 31st
North Bengal	...	...	...	...	,, 31st
South-West Bengal	...	...	...	...	June 1st
Behar	...	...	...	...	,, 3rd
Orissa	...	...	...	...	,, 9th

The distribution of rainfall during the month of June is generally very irregular, but was exceptionally so this year. Although the rains set in earlier in Bengal than usual, in consequence of the conditions being favourable, the main body of the monsoon current (as indicated more especially by the delay in the establishment and the weakness of the monsoon on the Bombay coast) was very feeble. The rainfall was small in amount, more especially in Behar, during the first week of the month. Larger amounts were received during the second week of the month, showers of moderate intensity occurring at frequent intervals. Every division, except Chutia Nagpur, received favourable and average or abundant rainfall at this time. This was followed by a partial break in the rains extending from the 14th to the 17th, during which the first barometric depression and small rainy season storm of the month formed near the head of the Bay. During this period some heavy local falls occurred in the northern districts of North Bengal and the Purneah district. The following amounts exceeding five inches were recorded:—

Cooch Behar	6·73	inches	on the 17th
Meckligunge in the Cooch Behar district	6·09	,,	on the 15th
Mahabhanga in the ditto	5·55	,,	on the 15th
Nowgong in the Rajshahye district ...	7·22	,,	on the 17th

The advance of this storm across Orissa was accompanied with heavy rain in that area and the adjacent districts of South-West Bengal, and followed by general rain over the whole Province.

The rainfall of the third week of the month was hence considerably below the normal in all parts of the Province except Orissa. The general burst of rain which followed the disappearance of the first storm gave average rain during the fourth week in Orissa, South-West Bengal, and North Bengal, and abundant rain in East Bengal and North Behar. The rainfall of the last three days of the month was small in amount.

The distribution of the total rainfall of the month is very irregular, and can only be stated roughly. The total rainfall was less than three inches in Palamow, the southern half of the Shahabad district, and portions of the Gya district and of the Sonthal Pergunnahs. It was less than five inches over the larger portion of South Behar and the western districts of Chutia Nagpur, and over portions of the Midnapore, Bankoora, and Burdwan districts, and also at Attia in the Mymensingh district. It was less than 10 inches to the west of a line which is very roughly defined by the meridian of 88°, and more closely by the stations of Arrareah, Bhagulpore, Rajmehal, Kooshtea, Cutwa, Serampore, and Tumlook. The rainfall of the whole of Orissa, excepting portions of the Pooree and Cuttack districts nearest to the sea, exceeded 10 inches. The rainfall to the east of the line defined above (excluding Attia) exceeded 10 inches, and over the greater part of the area increased eastwards from 10 to 20 inches. The Julpigoree, Cooch Behar, Chittagong and portions of Backergunj and Jessore districts received more than 20 inches, and in the immediate neighbourhood of the hills of East and North Bengal the rainfall of the month was between 30 and 40 inches in amount.

Assuming that, when the difference between the actual rainfall and the average rainfall of the month is less than 10 per cent. of the average (either in excess or defect), the rainfall of the month may be considered normal; the rainfall of the month of June was normal in the following districts:—Durbhunga, Patna, Bhagulpore, Moorshedabad, Burdwan, Rajshahye, Mymensingh, Comilla, Chittagong, Dacca, and Furreedpore.

The greater part of the area of deficient pressure during the past three months, viz. Orissa and the adjacent districts of South-West Bengal, has received excess rainfall during the month.

The following gives the districts in which the average rainfall was more than 10 per cent. in excess, and approximately the percentage of the excess:—Balasore 60 per cent., South Midnapore 45 per cent., Jessore 35 per cent., Cuttack 25 per cent., Motihari 20 per cent., Burrisal 13 per cent., 24-Pergunnahs, Hooghly, and Howrah 12 per cent.

The rainfall was in defect over the remaining districts of the Province. The deficiency was between 40 and 50 per cent. of the normal rainfall in Bankoora, Beerbhoom and Shahabad; between 30 and 40 per cent. in North Midnapore, Manbhoom, Singbhoom, Hazaribagh and the Southal Pergunnahs; between 20 and 30 per cent. in Chumparun and Noakholly, and between 10 and 20 per cent. in Bogra, Pubna, Dinagepore, Julpigoree, Cooch Behar, Purneah and Poorec.

There were three or four examples of remarkable local rainfalls, or of small centres of excessive or deficient rainfall These were Khoolna and Bhagulpore of excessive rainfall, and Attia of deficient rainfall. Bhagulpore received a total of 12 44 inches, the average being 8·41 inches. Khoolna received 22·46 inches, its average June rainfall being 13·03. Attia in Mymensingh obtained only 3 36 inches, whilst all the neighbouring stations received amounts exceeding 9 inches. The average rainfall of the month of the Mymensingh district in which it is situated is 16 37 inches.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the month of June 1884:—

CALCUTTA,
the 14th July 1884.

JOHN ELIOT,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL DURING THE WEEK ENDING THE 11TH JULY 1884.

At the end of last week ordinary monsoon winds, slightly above average strength, were established over the Province, and were giving general rain, smallest in amount over the coast districts of Orissa and South Bengal, and heaviest in the interior or over Behar and North Behar. No marked change in the weather occurred until the 8th, when an atmospheric whirl began to form at the head of the Bay. This is the fourth of the present south-west monsoon period. Winds shifted round to north on that day at the stations near the head of the Bay, and the rainfall in the interior diminished considerably in amount. The barometer fell rapidly on the 9th and 10th, the northerly winds in South-West Bengal and Orissa strengthened somewhat with the increasing strength of the whirl, and local showers of little importance fell over the Province. This short break in the rains was terminated by the passage of the vortex across the Balasore coast on the 11th, when southerly winds were again established over the whole of the Bengal coast, and gave general rain to the whole Province. The whirl crossed into the Central Provinces, and advanced over the head of the Peninsula, and has given heavy rain over the tract of country covered by it. It ceased to influence the weather in Bengal after the 12th.

Pressure—Was considerably above the average at the commencement of the week. It gave way steadily from the 5th until the 10th, during which period the barometer fell ·3″ in Orissa and South-West Bengal, ·22″ in Behar and ·2″ in East and North Bengal. This continuous fall was chiefly due to the formation of a barometric depression and small atmospheric whirl near the head of the Bay. Pressure began to recover on the 11th, when the centre of the whirl crossed the Balasore coast.

The mean pressure of the week was considerably below the normal. The deficiency averaged ·03″ in East Bengal and South Behar, ·04″ in Chutia Nagpur, ·05″ in South-West Bengal and North Behar, and ·07″ in Orissa.

Temperature.—The temperature variations are strictly related to the distribution of rainfall. The mean temperature of the week was ½° below the normal in Orissa and Chutia Nagpur, 1½° in North Behar and 2° in South Behar. It was 1° above it in South-West Bengal. The only station which registered a maximum temperature exceeding 100 was Buxar, where the highest temperature of the week was 103·4°.

Winds—During a considerable portion of the week the winds were mainly dependent upon the whirl at the head of the Bay. Normal monsoon winds obtained in every part of the Province at the beginning of the week. They fell off in strength, more especially in Bengal, on the 6th and 7th. Winds from directions between north-east and north-west were established on the 8th over the greater part of South-West Bengal and Orissa. The wind directions in the remainder of the Province continued practically unaltered in direction. With the westerly advance of the disturbance across the Balasore coast on the 11th, southerly winds of moderate strength again set in over South Bengal, and established ordinary monsoon conditions over the Province.

Rainfall.—Average or abundant rain has fallen in almost every part of the Province during the week. The chief features in the rainfall of the past week are the large amounts that have fallen over nearly the whole of North Behar, and locally in the Julpigoree and Cooch Behar districts, and the small amounts that have fallen in several districts of Central Bengal, more especially Furreedpore, Bogra, Pubna, and Rajshahye.

Moderate to heavy general rain was received in East and North Bengal and Behar on the 5th, 6th, and 7th. Some very heavy local rainfalls occurred during this period in portions of North Behar and the northern districts of North Bengal. The following rainfalls exceeding five inches were registered during this period in those areas:—

Siligori	6·5	inches on the	5th.
Buxa	5·4	ditto	ditto.
Do.	9·6	ditto	7th
Matabhanga in Cooch Behar ..	5·97	ditto	ditto.
Gopalgunge in the Mozufferpore district	5·71	ditto	ditto.
Hajipore in the Sarun district ..	5·01	ditto	ditto.

Local showers giving generally small amounts were received during this period in South-West Bengal, Orissa and Chutia Nagpur. The rainfall of the 8th was much less general The northern districts of North Bengal again received heavy rain. The only reported amount exceeding 5 inches was 5·9 inches at Cooch Behar. Moderate and fairly general rain also fell in Behar. The influence of the whirl or disturbance at the head of the Bay was clearly shown on the 9th and 10th. Rainfall was, during these two days, general only in South-West Bengal and Orissa, which received moderate, but fairly uniformly distributed rain. Local showers occurred in the remaining divisions. After the advance landwards of the whirl, rainfall extended over the whole Province almost immediately, and general rain was received in every division on the 11th, heaviest in the western districts of South-West Bengal and in Chutia Nagpur. The total rainfall of the week was approximately normal in Dinagepore, Rungpore, Barrisal, Noakholly, Pooree, Midnapore, 24-Pergunnahs, Howrah, Hooghly, and Jessore.

Rajshahye and Furreedpore received only between 30 and 40 per cent. of their normal amount; Bogra and Pubna between 40 and 50 per cent., the Sonthal Pergunnahs, Hazaribagh, Burdwan, and Dacca between 50 and 60 per cent., Ranchee, Balasore, Mymensingh, and Nuddea between 60 and 70 per cent., and Bhagulpore, Moorshedabad and Jessore, between 70 and 80 per cent.

The average total amounts received in the Julpigoree, Motihari, Purneah, and Chyebassa districts were between two and two and a half times the normal amounts. The Patna, Gya, Shahabad, Durbhunga, Mozufferpore, and Commillah districts received amounts which were between 25 and 50 per cent. in excess of their normal fall for the week, Cuttack received an excess of 55 per cent., and the Sarun district of 80 per cent.

The following table shows that North Behar received an average amount of 5·72 inches as compared with a normal average of 2·79 inches. The only division in which this average rainfall was markedly below the normal was Chutia Nagpur. Hence the irregularities in the distribution of the rainfall have nearly compensated each other in the cases of South-West Bengal, North and East Bengal.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 11th July 1884 :—

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community taken in February 1881 was not reliable, owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Eur to cannot be employed as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under ORDERS BY THE LIEUT.-GOVERNOR OF BENGAL.

ON the retirement of the HON'BLE HENRY LUCIUS DAMPIER, C.I.E., after a service of nearly 35 years in Bengal, the Lieutenant-Governor desires to place on record his high sense of the zeal and devotion to public duty which MR. DAMPIER has brought to the performance of all his work. From the earliest days of his appointment to these Provinces, MR. Throughout his official career he has always offered an example of rare industry and honest independence; of warm sympathy for the people of this country, and a right regard for public interests. He leaves India at a time when the principles and practice of revenue administration in Bengal are undergoing a thorough revision, and it is in connection with this last great and important measure that MR. DAMPIER'S knowledge and varied experience have been of the utmost value to the Government. MR. DAMPIER carries with him in his retirement the thanks and good wishes of the Government of Bengal.

ANNUAL REPORT ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF CIVIL JUSTICE IN THE SONTHAL PERGUNNAHS FOR 1883.

RESOLUTION.

JUDICIAL.

Dated Calcutta, the 21st July 1884.

READ—

The Annual Report on the Administration of Civil Justice in the Sonthal Pergunnahs for the year 1883.

Read also—

The Reports for 1881 and 1882, and the orders of Government recorded thereon.

The classification of suits in the forms prescribed by the High Court for the past three years is now uniform, with the exception of title suits. The latter are now entered in Statement 7 (Civil), but up to September 1882 were entered as revenue suits under section 5, Regulation III of 1872. A comparison of the figures for the past three years gives the following results:—

	Instituted.			Disposed of.			Pending.

* This number includes four cases transferred to the Collector of Purneah.

Thus the total number of execution cases and of suits instituted was 60 less than in 1882. The total number of suits instituted was, however, 12,686 against 11,992 in 1881 and 12,373 in 1882. There were 1,454 suits pending at the close of the year, being 273 more than at the close of the preceding year

2. The total number of civil suits instituted only increased by one, but there appear to have been considerable fluctuations in the different sub-divisions. The bulk of the litigation is stated to have been as hitherto on shop accounts for goods sold and for money lent: the rules contained in section 6, Regulation III of 1872, relating to usury, are so well known that there is seldom need to act on them. It is stated, however, that the High Court's ruling that any interpretation of this clause, which conflicts with the contract law, is erroneous, is becoming known, and that old debts, which may have been for prohibited usury or compound interest, are now covered by fresh written contracts. Suits for immoveable property having been since September 1882 shown as title instead of rent suits, the nominal number of the former increased from 478 in 1882 to 1,443, while there was a decrease from the same cause under the head of rent suits from 4,545 to 3,892. The suits for arrears of rents remained almost stationary: but there were fluctuations in the sub-divisions. There was a large increase in Deoghur in the number of suits of this class, as well as of civil suits, of which no explanation has been given.

3. In the preceding report the Deputy Commissioner described the efforts that had been made to define the headman's status, to render sub-letting ineffective, to restrict the transfer by tenants of their holdings, and the sale of holdings in execution of decrees. In the Resolution on that report, it was directed that the effects of the changes on the suits during the year 1883 should be carefully noted and recorded in the report submitted after its close. From that report it is satisfactory to find that the effect of prohibiting village headmen from encumbering their nij-jote, unless the encumbrance is on land held under occupancy rights, has been effective. The Deputy Commissioner in writing on this subject says:—"The effect of this rule cannot be gathered from any of the heads of the figured statements, but it has been welcomed as a boon by the talukdars concerned, and so salutary has it been on the headmen themselves, that in 1883 the complaints and applications for their dismissal, which used to be so numerous and even so scandalous, were under ten in number." The operation of the rule that no rent can be recovered at a higher rent than what has been fixed by settlement is stated to have had a decided effect in restraining sub-letting. But in neither of these instances is the effect of the changes distinctly apparent in the litigation itself: nor is it stated whether any, or what, attempts were made to evade the enforcement of them.

4. The attempts to restrict the transfer of tenancies by cultivators are stated, however, to have been fruitless. On this point the Deputy Commissioner observes that "the evil has attained such magnitude, and constitutes such a real danger, that nothing short of the extension of the prohibition against transfers prevailing in the Damin-i-Koh to all Sonthal lands in the district will now cope with it." An interesting account of the origin of this practice is given by Mr. Oldham in paragraphs 34-44 of his report. Previous to 1878, sales of land by Sonthals, or by mere cultivators, except in one pergunnah of the Rajmehal sub-division, were unknown, the reason being apparently that in the Damin-i-Koh transfers were prohibited, while in other parts the cultivators were either mere tenants-at-will, or, if they had rights, could find no purchasers. In the year above mentioned, however, Mr. Boxwell, the then Deputy Commissioner, reported that sales of this kind were taking the place of borrowing. A report was called for; all the old officers who were consulted questioned the correctness of the statement, though admitting that the ryot's credit had increased. On this ground interference was deprecated, but in 1881 and 1882 it became known that these sales had largely taken place, and that in many cases the Sonthals were working as labourers on lands on which they had formerly held rights. "All these changes," writes Mr. Oldham, "due to the suddenly enhanced credit, have occurred in the years since 1876, all distinguished not only by good harvests, but by prices most favourable to the producers. In the present season, when credit is wanted, there is none, and in my recent tour through Hendue and Passai, I was followed by crowds clamouring for the restoration of their lands, and complaining that they could get no advances. * * * Were the buyers fellow tenants, or even proprietors intent on merging tenancies, there would be nothing to be said. But they are not. They are all either Bengali traders and money-lenders from Beerbhoom and Burdwan, or the far more dangerous class, Bhagat traders from Bhojpur. * * * It is impossible to describe their greed for land and their daring in pursuit of it." As a proof of the extent to which these sales have been effected, it is stated in tuppeh Hendue (about 450 square miles) 10 annas of the Sonthal lands have been sold, and in pergunnah Passai (about 300 square miles) 12 annas. How much is mortgaged has apparently not been ascertained. The statement of the Deputy Commissioner that in these transactions the purchasers are always Bengali traders or money-lenders from other districts is not borne out by the returns now before the Lieutenant-Governor from the Registration Department. These returns would seem to show that, though a considerable number of the sales have been made to mahajuns and traders, in the great majority of cases the purchasers are ryots in the Sonthal Pergunnahs. The figures for 1883-84 are 691 sales to money-lenders, and 1,932 to ryots. The purchases of holdings by the zemindars themselves are very few. But whatever the facts may be as to the persons who buy the ryots' tenures, Mr. Rivers Thompson is of opinion that it is of the utmost importance to the civil administration of the Sonthal Pergunnahs that the Sonthalis should retain possession of their lands. The growth of a large class of Sonthali labourers working for interlopers on lands once their own must be checked by every legitimate means as being dangerous to the peace of the country and of benefit only to a few individuals who are actuated in their dealings with the people by mere mercenary motives, and who consequently are the greatest obstacles to the prosperity of the country. The question is, however, one of much difficulty. The issue of a rule of Civil procedure merely prohibiting transfers by sale would probably not check other modes of transfer with which the people are now familiar, such as by mortgaging their lands to creditors, agreeing to continue as cultivators on half produce, or by sub-letting their holdings to be held nominally at a rent by a creditor who in reality pays nothing. The Lieutenant-Governor is therefore not prepared to issue a rule on the subject until the matter has been fully considered in connection with the larger question which has been raised as to the right of transfer of occupancy holdings under the Bengal Tenancy Bill now before the Legislative Council, upon which a final decision will shortly be made. The question of the sale in execution of proprietary rights in land has been decided, and the application of rule 35 of the Sonthal Civil Rules to all cases, whether tried in Sonthal Courts or under courts vested with powers under Act VI of 1871, been confirmed.

5. The number of cases disposed of by the courts was 19,942 against 20,336 of 1882. The cause assigned for the diminution is the frequent changes caused by the absence of the Deputy Commissioner on furlough. It is satisfactory to notice the decrease in the number of appeals, or rather applications for revision against the orders of the subordinate Civil and Revenue tribunals. Of these, against 780 in 1882 there were 632 in 1883, of which 403 were to the sub-divisional officers and 211 to the Deputy Commissioner: and 43 miscellaneous appeals, of which 17 were to sub-divisional officers and 26 to the Deputy Commissioner. The procedure in hearing applications for revision, as described by the Deputy Commissioner, is of a simple kind and calculated to give as little harassment as possible to the parties. On a fixed date, verbally notified to the petitioner, the lower court's proceedings are examined. If found correct, the petitioner and lower court are informed of the order dismissing the petition and its reasons: if incorrect, the steps ordered to be taken towards amending them, and the reasons therefor, are recorded and sent to the lower court for compliance. There is thus the least possible encouragement to vaxatious appeals: and the total number of the applications for revision was only five per cent. on the number of decisions.

6. The receipts of the courts rose from Rs. 71,970-2 to Rs. 75,718-5-6, the rise being general in all the sub-divisions except Godda and Pakour. In these there was a slight decrease corresponding to the decrease in institutions of suits. The total value of suits instituted is stated at Rs. 4,87,960, showing an increase of Rs. 76,571 over the figures of the preceding year. Of 12,648 suits in the Civil Courts, in which the value could be estimated in money, those of values not exceeding Rs. 100 rose from 1,091 to 1,322, and of values not exceeding Rs. 500 from 587 to 682, while those of values not exceeding Rs. 50 fell from 5,422 to 5,150 compared with the year 1882. The increase in receipts therefore appears to have been due to closer scrutiny into the values of the suits, and to show that the orders of Government contained in paragraph 6 of the Resolution on the report for last year have been carried out.

7. The Deputy Commissioner, in his report, complains of the great difficulties he has found in maintaining a sufficient number of Sub-Deputy Collectors and Canoongoes, the former of whom take much work off the hands of sub-divisional officers in the disposal of petty suits, the latter performing the functions of Civil Court Ameens. This subject is now under consideration in the Revenue Department of this Government. Mr. Rivers Thompson is fully aware that the officers in the Sonthal Pergunnahs have to contend with many difficulties requiring tact and discretion, and that their work, though unencumbered by technical and formal processes, is heavy: he is therefore pleased to find that in the past year they have continued to maintain their reputation for steady, intelligent work. Since the close of that year the Sonthal Pergunnahs have lost by the departure of the Deputy Commissioner, Mr. Oldham, an officer whose merits as a district officer have always been most favourably noticed, and whose administration of a difficult charge has effected many permanent improvements. A copy of the remarks of the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner, regarding the officers in the Sonthal Pergunnahs subordinate to them, will be forwarded for record to the Appointment Department.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

F. B. PEACOCK,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

CALCUTTA,
The 21st July 1884.

JOHN ELIOT,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL DURING THE WEEK ENDING THE 18TH JULY 1884.

The past week has been marked by a considerable deficiency in the rainfall. This was mainly due to the rapid succession of atmospheric whirls which have formed during the past fortnight and advanced across the Orissa coast. They all appear to have been generated in the same manner. The observations on the Ceylon coast indicated the existence of strong winds in the south of the Bay two or three days before the formation of each whirl. These strong southerly moist winds advanced up the Bay, giving frequent rain squalls, more especially near their front. There also appears to have been a very large amount of eddying motion in front of each rush or advance of these winds, which accumulated or was converted into a cyclonic disturbance near the head of Bay. The whirl that formed in the latter part of the previous week passed into the Central Provinces and ceased to influence the weather in Bengal directly after the 12th. Another whirl began to form near the head of the Bay on the 14th and 15th. It advanced across the Orissa coast further to the south than the previous whirl. It brought up moderate supplies of vapour, and gave general rain over the Province on the 17th. Another whirl commenced to form on the afternoon of the 18th. This has continued to influence the weather, and is bringing up larger supplies of vapour and giving moderately heavy rain over the whole Province.

Pressure—Was considerably below the average at the end of last week. It increased rapidly on the 12th, 13th, and 14th. The rise during this period was less in East Bengal than in the remaining divisions for which it averaged ·2″. The barometer fell by amounts varying from ·03″ to ·15″ over the Province on the 15th and 16th. A small depression formed at this time near the head of the Bay, and crossed the Orissa coast a little to the south of False Point on the morning of the 16th. This was followed by a moderate increase of pressure over the whole Province on the 17th and 18th. Pressure began to give way in Eastern Bengal and the adjacent districts of South-West Bengal on the morning of the 19th. This was an indication of the formation of another atmospheric whirl at the head of the Bay, which is now (the 22nd) approaching the Balasore coast. The fluctuations of the barometer during the week have hence been mainly due to the formation and motion of two small cyclonic vortices. During their generation and existence at sea, pressure diminished over the Province. With their passage across the coast, the barometer commenced to rise, and pressure increased rapidly after their disappearance. The mean pressure of the week is in excess of the normal pressure for all divisions except Orissa, which continues to be, relatively to the remainder of the Province, an area of deficient pressure. The excess averages ·03″ for South-West Bengal and Chutia Nagpur, ·04″ for South Behar, and ·05″ for East Bengal and North Behar.

Temperature.—In consequence of the small amount of rain which fell during the week, the temperature was generally above the average. The variations were in no case large. The excess in the mean temperature was greatest at Cuttack and Saugor Island, where it averaged 1·3° and 1° for the week. Moderately high maximum temperatures were registered in all divisions during the week. The following table gives the highest maximum temperature observed in each division during the week :—

Orissa	93·4° at Cuttack on the 15th.
South-West Bengal	95·0° at Raneeganj on the 16th.
East Bengal	93·3° at Mymensingh on the 16th.
North Bengal	94·8° at Rungpore on the 16th.
North Behar	95·2° at Mozufferpore on the 16th
South Behar	98·7° at Gya on the 18th.

Winds—Have been variable during the week. Moderately strong monsoon winds obtained over the whole Province on the 12th. They fell off rapidly in strength on the 13th. Very light south-west winds prevailed in South-West Bengal on the 14th. The winds in South and Central Behar and in Chutia Nagpur also shifted round to west on that day. On the 15th light northerly winds due to a small whirl at the head of the Bay prevailed in South Bengal and Orissa. After the passage of the whirl across the Orissa coast on the 16th, moderately strong monsoon humid winds were again established over the whole Province, and continued in force until the evening of the 18th, when winds again shifted to directions between north-east and north-west in South-West Bengal and Orissa, thus indicating the formation of another atmospheric whirl near the head of the Bay.

Rainfall.—The rainfall of the week has been below the average in all districts, and has in some cases been exceptionally small in amount. The disturbance which crossed the Orissa coast at the end of last week gave moderate rain on the 12th in Orissa, South-West Bengal, East Bengal, Chutia Nagpur and the greater part of South Behar. The rainfall diminished in amount on the 13th, and was general only in a small part of South-West Bengal. A partial break in the rains obtained over the whole Province on the 14th. The small cyclonic disturbance which began to form at the head of the Bay on that day gave moderate rain on the 15th to Orissa, and fairly general rain over the greater part of the Province on the 16th. Light to moderate showers also fell on the 17th and 18th in all districts except those in the west and centre of Behar, where there was a marked break in the rains.

There has been an unusual absence of heavy rainfalls during the week, the rain having occurred chiefly as light or moderate showers.

Commillah and Mymensingh were the only districts which received rainfall in excess of the normal amount, and the excess was small in both cases. Darjeeling obtained 85 per cent. of its normal rainfall of the week; Bhagulpore, Dacca, Burdwan, Midnapore, and Shahabad received between 70 and 80 per cent.; Hazaribagh, Bancoora, Beerbhoom, Bogra, Pubna, Dinagepore, and Chumparun between 60 and 70 per cent.; Nuddea, Jessore, the 24-Pergunnahs, Howrah, Hooghly, Rajshahye, Burrisal, the Sonthal Pergunnahs, Singbhoom, and Manbhoom between 50 and 60 per cent., and Furreedpore, Gya, Patna, Noakholly and Julpigoree between 37 and 27 per cent. The average rainfall of the Sarun and Moorshedabad districts was 20 per cent. of the normal fall of the week, of the Rungpore district 18 per cent., of the Durbhunga and Mozufferpore districts 16 per cent., and of the Purneah district only 15 per cent.

The small rainfall of the week was due in the case of all the divisions to the lightness of the showers, and not to a marked decrease of the number of rainy days. The following table shows that the deficiency averaged approximately one inch in South Behar and Chutia Nagpur, and 1½ inches in Bengal and North Behar.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 18th July 1884:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Calcutta, the 21st July 1884. For Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of India.

MEMORANDA.

THE returns of the first class Municipalities in Bengal for the week ending 5th July 1884, present the following results :—

1. That births and deaths were registered at the rates of 18·2 and 25·2 per 1,000 of population, respectively, against 16·0 and 26·9 per 1,000, respectively, during the preceding week ending 26th June, indicating an improvement in the registration of births, and a falling off in that of deaths.

2. That these events were returned at the highest rates from the undermentioned Municipalities :—

showing that, in comparison with the preceding week, the death-rates from cholera, small-pox, and the diseases classed under the head of "Other causes" had, on the whole, declined, notably from the first-named disease, but that the mortality from fever had increased somewhat.

4. That while the casualties from fever and violence were not noticeably severe anywhere, the rest of the diseases carried off the largest proportions of the populations of the following Municipalities :—

Cholera.	Ratio per mille.	Small-pox.	Ratio per mille.	Bowel-complaints.	Ratio per mille.	Other causes.	Ratio per mille.

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community taken in February 1881 was not reliable, owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans above alluded to cannot be employed as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under the authorized form of age classification.

GENERAL REMARKS AND EXPLANATIONS.

The total quantity of goods carried during the month of June 1884 aggregated maunds 4,55,373, as compared with maunds 3,08,024 carried during the corresponding period of 1883, and maunds 5,37,004 carried during the previous month, showing an increase of maunds 1,47,349 in one case, and decrease of maunds 81,631 in the other.

Of the several increases, and decreases, the following are the most prominent ones, and worthy of separate explanation:—

Increase.

Mds.

Coal 2,799

Due to the indigo manufacturing having commenced and consequent demand for fuel.

Food-grains 1,09,412

This is chiefly import traffic due to the failure of crops.

Hides and horns 4,789

There is a good demand in Calcutta during the earlier part of the month, hence this increase.

Mowah 2 164

Due to increased distilleries now opened.

Railway materials 30,188

This fluctuates according to the miles of railway under construction. Rails going up to Kosi extension.

Salt 15,446

This has been repeatedly explained in previous reports. A sudden fall in this staple is anticipated, as the rivers have now risen sufficiently to render navigation easy.

Saltpetre 4,852

Due to the brisk demands in Calcutta market.

Seeds 15,560

Owing to a brisk demand for this staple at the port for shipment to England and America.

Sugar and jaggree 7,106

These two staples were included under the heads of all "Other goods" in last year's statement, hence cannot be fully explained, but a certain amount is due to the opening of the western and eastern extensions.

Timber 4,405

The same as above.

Decreases.

Piece-goods 2,062

There has been a continued decrease in this staple and is not expected to revive for some time more, probably due to failure of crops.

Lime and kunker 10,926

The completion of the several large public buildings in the district is the cause of decrease.

Tobacco 45,603

The staple is now finding its way by the rivers instead of by rail, owing to their having become navigable.

CALCUTTA,
The 28th July 1884.

JOHN ELIOT,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL DURING THE WEEK ENDING THE 25TH JULY 1884.

The meteorology of the Province during the past week presents the same abnormal features as during the preceding three weeks. During the past month there has been a rapid succession of brief bursts of strong south-west monsoon winds up the Bay. These have each given rise to the formation of small atmospheric whirls or cyclonic circulations near the head of the Bay. Hence there has also been a rapid succession of very feeble cyclonic storms at the head of the Bay, all of which, since the beginning of June, formed or gathered strength near the Sandheads, and crossed the Orissa coast. Their passage landwards has been in each case followed by a comparatively feeble inrush of monsoon winds into the Province, which have given more or less general rain, most abundantly in East and South Bengal and Orissa, or in the neighbourhood of the coast and the path of the storms. The rainfall has been in consequence very irregularly distributed, more especially during the present month, and many parts of North Bengal and North Behar have received an unusually small rainfall.

The peculiar features of the present monsoon have been very strongly marked during the past week. A small cyclonic circulation began to be formed in the front of a rush of monsoon winds, as was noted in last week's report, on Friday the 18th. Winds shifted round in South Bengal on the morning of the 19th. It was an unusually feeble cyclonic disturbance, and remained in the north-west angle of the Bay until the morning of the 23rd, when it crossed the Balasore coast and was broken up by the North Orissa hills. Another whirl began to form on the 24th, and the occurrence of very heavy rainfall at Akyab on that day seemed to indicate that it was initiated by stronger monsoon winds than the preceding whirl, and would probably give rise to larger and more general rainfall. It gained strength very rapidly, and advanced across the Balasore coast in less than 24 hours from the time that it first influenced the winds on the Bengal and Orissa coasts. It has brought up larger supplies of vapour, which have apparently given heavy rainfall in Eastern Bengal, and produced a slight depression in that area. This is at present giving atmospheric disturbance to the greater part of Bengal, and fairly general rainfall over the whole Province.

Pressure—Was falling at the end of last week in consequence of the formation of a whirl (the fifth of the present season) at the head of the Bay. It diminished at first rapidly, but from the 20th to the 23rd the changes were small. The passage of the storm across the Balasore coast early on the morning of the 23rd was followed by a slight increase of pressure in East Bengal and Orissa. A rapid decrease of pressure on the 24th accompanied the formation of another whirl (the sixth of the present season) at the head of the Bay. Unlike the preceding, it formed very rapidly and crossed the Balasore coast very early on the morning of the 25th. This was followed by an unusually rapid rise of the barometer over the whole Province, greatest in amount in East and South Bengal and Orissa. The mean pressure of the week is below the average in those districts chiefly affected by the cyclonic disturbances, that is, in Orissa and the adjacent districts of South-West Bengal. It was above it in the remainder of the Province by amounts ranging from zero at Burdwan, Berhampore and Jessore to ·04″ at Patna and Durbhunga.

Temperature—Has varied slightly from the normal during the week. The mean temperature of the week was from 1° to 2° above the normal in the area of most deficient rainfall (Behar and North Bengal), and very slightly below it in Orissa, South-West and East Bengal.

Winds—Have been very variable in South-West Bengal and Orissa during the week. Northerly winds prevailed during the formation of the two storms, whilst their passage landwards was followed by a burst of monsoon winds over the Province. The first storm gave a very feeble influx, and affected the air circulation very slightly in Behar. The second gave a much stronger humid current over Bengal, and a larger influx of aqueous vapour on the 25th. It was felt in Behar on the 26th, when strong easterly winds prevailed for some little time in Central and South Behar.

Rain.—The rainfall of the past week has been very unequally distributed. The passage of the two cyclonic disturbances across Orissa has given heavy rainfall to the northern districts of that division, the south-western districts of South-West Bengal and the south-eastern districts of Chutia Nagpur. South and East Bengal have received moderate rain from the influx of vapour that followed the landward motion of the storms. There has been on the other hand an almost complete break of the rains in North Bengal and Behar during the past week.

Moderate rain fell on the 19th, 20th and 21st in Orissa, East and South-West Bengal, Chutia Nagpur and Sonthal Pergunnahs. The rainfall was most general and heaviest on the 21st. Frequent light showers occurred in Orissa and South-West Bengal on the 22nd and 23rd, and local showers in East Bengal. Some very heavy showers fell in North Orissa on the 24th and 25th, due to the second disturbance of the week. The following were the heaviest:—

Jellasore	...	...	...	5·00 inches on the	24th.
Baripoda	...	...	...	4·71 ditto	24th.
Saugor Island	...	...	...	4·34 ditto	25th.

Light to moderate rain also fell on the 25th over the whole Province, excepting the western districts of North and South Behar.

The following statement gives fully the distribution of rainfall during the week with respect to place.

The three districts of Balasore, Midnapore, and Singbhoom (through which the storms passed), received amounts from two to two and a half times the normal amount. The adjacent districts, including the 24-Pergunnahs, Howrah, Hooghly, Burdwan, Nuddea, Bankoora, Birbhoom, Manbhoom, and the Sonthal Pergunnahs received approximately normal amounts and varying with one unimportant exception by less than ten per cent. from the average district rainfall of the week. The Cuttack and Moorshedabad districts received between 80 and 90 per cent., and the Jessore district 50 per cent of their normal amounts. Eastern Bengal received amounts below the average in all districts. Burrisal obtained 90 per cent., Furreedpore and Noakholly between 70 and 80 per cent., Dacca and Comillah between 60 and 70 per cent., and Mymensingh only 23 per cent.

The raintall was abnormally deficient in North Bengal and Behar. The following districts received less than 10 per cent. of the normal rainfall of the week, and hence give the area of most deficient rainfall :—Chumparun (2 per cent.), Sarun and Julpigoree (each 6 per cent.), Rungpore (8 per cent.) and Patna (9 per cent.). The week was in fact almost rainless in these districts. Shahabad, Durbhunga, Mozufferpore, Purneah, and Dinagepore received between 10 and 20 per cent. of the average; Gya 20 per cent., Bhagulpore 34 per cent., and Bogra, Pubna, and Rajshahye between 40 and 50 per cent.

The following abstract table shows that Orissa, South-West Bengal, and Chutia Nagpur received on the whole excess rainfall, but that East Bengal only obtained an average rainfall, which was 65 per cent. of the normal amount, North Bengal 17 per cent., North Behar 12 per cent., and South Behar 38 per cent.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 25th July 1884 :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

MEMORANDA.

FROM the annexed table, exhibiting the vital statistics of the first class Municipalities in Bengal for the week ending 12th July 1884, the following results have been gathered:—

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community taken in February 1881 was not reliable, owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, it was made as the census of the Europeans above alluded to cannot be employed as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under the authorized form of age classification.
